State Executives Refuse To Indorse Proposed Three Billion Emergency Employment Fund.

ROOSEVELT URGES CRIME WAVE STUDY

Iowa Governor Advocates Sterilization of Unfit To Check Increase in Feeble-Minded.

New Orleans, November 21.—(AP)—Governors attending the New Orleans conference late today declined to indorse by resolution the proposal of Herbert Hoover to launch a movement for the creation of a $3,000,000,000 fund to provide employment in dull times by construction work.

At the request of Governor Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, who presented the plan, the governors considered his proposal of indorsement in executive session. At its conclusion it was announced officially that no action had been taken as it was not a policy of the governors' conference to adopt resolutions.

The proposal, however, was received enthusiastically by the governors who followed the Maine governor's speech closely. The plan calls for stabilization of construction by public and quasi-public buildings being portioned out to extend over lean years.

"Picture the approach of an economic crisis with unemployment threatening on every hand," Governor Brewster said. "The release of three billions in construction contracts by public and quasi-public authority would remedy or ameliorate the situation in the twinkling of an eye."

"Like House Jack Built," "No centralization of authority is proposed but merely the creation of a condition by concerted action that shall make possible a remedy that will appeal persuasively to all. Follow the flow of those three billions to the contractor, to the laborer, to the material men, to the factory, to the factory employees, to the merchants, to the farmers. It goes to the house that Jack built and unemployment is at an end."

"These views of the way in which the states and the federal government may cooperate with the federal government in controlling in some measure construction work for the common good are presented to the conference of governors at the request of Herbert Hoover as an authorized exposition of a portion of his program for stabilizing the prosperity of the United States."

"Organization for prosperity is the next lesson that America may teach the nations of the world," he concluded.

Sterilization of the unfit was advocated by Governor John Hammill, of Iowa.

"It is my balanced opinion that we must resort to sterilization to prevent the feeble-minded and those tainted by chronic disease from filling our institutions with their offspring," he said.

Roosevelt Fights Crime. Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor-elect of New York, telegraphed the governors from his winter home in Georgia to adopt some method of collecting fundamental statistics with which the crime wave can be successfully and intelligently studied.

The Swing-Johnson Boulder dam bill was attacked by Governor George H. Dern, of Utah, as legislation that would bestow favoritism upon California without regard to the rights of the other states in the Colorado basin.

During the afternoon Governor John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, who is also a pilot of airplanes, carried a giant tri-motored monoplane aloft with several governors and their guests as passengers. On his first flight he was accompanied by Governor Fred R. Zimmerman, of Wisconsin, and E. Lee Trinkle, former governor of Virginia.

Between flights Governor Trumbull said "commercial aviation has got over."

Break in Market Follows Deluge Of 'Sell' Orders

Three-Day Effort Brings Total to Within $12,000 of Halfway Mark; Leaders Confident.

Three days of strenuous campaigning have gathered $228,000 for the Community Chest fund of 1929, it was announced Wednesday night from headquarters of the organization. This sum is $12,000 short of the halfway mark which workers had hoped to reach by Wednesday noon, but officials of the chest declared that the whirlwind canvass scheduled for the remainder of the week was expected to convince citizens of Atlanta of the pressing need.

More than 500 workers attended the report luncheon held at the Ansley roof and statements by team leaders indicated a splendid effort on the part of the workers.

Whole-Hearted Cooperation. "The Community Chest has never received the benefit of such wholehearted and unselfish cooperation from the workers," Henry C. Heinz, general chairman, declared. "We only wish that the public would share with our teams a realization of the inestimable value of the chest. Every dollar asked for in the budget committee's report is actually needed for the relief of suffering in our midst. We can obtain this money only by this annual appeal to the public."

Presentation of the Community Chest as a humanitarian rather than a charitable organization was made by Rabbi David Marx, who made the principal address at the luncheon. Dr. Marx touched briefly on the part played in the social life of Atlanta by the 39 agencies of the chest and expressed his faith in the generosity of Atlanta people "whose hearts must open the strings to their pocketbooks for the sake of suffering humanity."

Common Sense Appeal. "The appeal of the Community Chest is common sense and practical," Roy McCraw, co-chairman, told the workers. "Six years ago there were six charitable agencies in Atlanta, each conducting an annual canvass for funds, the cost of which consumed 50 cents of every dollar collected. Under the Community Chest there are 39 agencies and the entire cost of collection is less than 10 cents."

WRECKERS TO GET OLD CHURCH TODAY

First Baptist Edifice, an Outstanding Landmark, To Be Torn Down; New Building To Rise.

Clearing away of one of the outstanding landmarks of Atlanta will be started at 6:30 o'clock this morning when a crew of wreckers begin dismantling of the old First Baptist church, at Peachtree and Cain streets, to make way for modern commercial development.

W. C. Flournoy, manager of the Atlanta Wrecking company, stated Wednesday night, following award of the contract to raze the structure.

Representing the last stronghold of non-commercial structures in the important Peachtree business section, the church was sold to the Peters Land company about 10 months ago, at which time E. C. Peters, president Total Sales Again Pass 6,000,000 Mark as Bulls Get First Jolt Since Election.

CURB SETS RECORD FOR TOTAL SALES

Reaction Regarded by Experts as Partially Correcting Recent Speculative Excesses.

BY STANLEY W. PRENSHIL, Associated Press Financial Editor. New York, November 21.—(AP)—A hurricane of selling orders struck the stock market with terrific force late today, checking the "bull" movement which has been moving along with considerable violence since election day. Although the "bull" forces succeeded in staging a moderate recovery from the low levels, final quotations disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from $1 to $5 a share, and a few specialties down $7 to $20 a share.

Total sales crossed the 6,000,000 share mark for the third time, but were well below the record of 6,811,900 shares established yesterday.

Because of the delay of more than an hour in the stock ticker and the fact that the bulk of the selling took place in the last half hour of trading, the market was over before most traders learned the reaction had taken place, although rumblings of it became apparent in mid-afternoon. The final quotation was printed 1 hour and 48 minutes after the close.

Beginning tomorrow, all sales volume of individual transactions, except at the opening, will be dropped from the ticker, in the hope of greatly reducing the printing of quotations. In order to provide New York afternoon newspapers and press associations with total sales of all stocks, the New York Stock Exchange arranged to

DR. KING NEW HEAD OF TRADE COUNCIL

Formation of New Organization Closes Second Annual Southeastern Foreign Trade.

With the election of officers Wednesday at the close of the second Southeastern Foreign Trade conference, which has been meeting in Atlanta for the past two days, the Southeastern Foreign Trade council, proposed at the close of the first conference, held in March, 1927, was definitely organized.

Dr. Guy King, of Chattanooga, vice president and export manager, of the National Yang and Processing company, was elected to the presidency.

Milton Bell, of Atlanta, cashier of the Sixth District Federal Reserve bank, and a director of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, was elected treasurer.

Harry O. Mitchell, of Atlanta, district manager of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, was elected secretary.

Dunagin Elected. George A. Dunagin, of Atlanta, marketing specialist, bureau of agricultural economics of the federal department of agriculture, was elected assistant secretary.

Twenty-one vice presidents, each to represent some vital activity identified with the development of the foreign trade of the southeast, were elected. They are as follows:

Vice presidents for port development: Dr. R. S. MacLewie, port commissioner of the city of Charleston; Gordon Saussey, Savannah port attorney; General William Luther Sibert, chairman, Alabama state docks commission, Mobile.

Vice presidents for railroad transportation: R. L. McKeller, foreign freight traffic manager, Southern Railway system, Louisville, Ky.; Fred J. Robinson, executive general agent, Central of Georgia railroad, Atlanta.

Vice president for ocean shipping: Freight Traffic, E. S. Travel, president, South Atlantic Steamship lines, Savannah; passenger traffic, James Legrand McCall, general passenger agent, Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, New Orleans.

Vice presidents for Merchant Marine: Robert Maddox, chairman of the board, Atlanta and Lowry National bank, Atlanta, and member Commission on Commerce and Marine, American Bankers association; N. P. Leary, district traffic representative, Merchant Fleet corporation, United States Shipping board, Atlanta.

Vice President for Inland Waterways: J. Balston Carrell, secretary-treasurer and traffic manager, Co-

TEN JURYMEN ARE SELECTED IN ADAIR CASE

Thirty-Six More Veniremen Have Been Called by Federal Judge To Report This Morning.

GRAND JURY PLANS 'TAMPERING' PROBE

District Attorney Hager Makes Denial of Defense Charge of Attempt To Intimidate Veniremen.

Gainesville, Ga., November 21.—(AP) Selection of a jury in the Adair mail fraud cases began here today in federal court after Judge Samuel H. Sibley concluded investigation of jury tampering charges with the announcement that the matter would be investigated by the federal grand jury.

Entire confidence in attorneys on both sides was expressed by the judge, who declared his belief that none of them had been involved in any jury manipulation.

Ten Selected Tentatively. Ten jurors had been selected tentatively when court recessed late today and deputy marshals were serving summonses on 36 additional veniremen who were ordered to report in court tomorrow morning. When the jury is finally selected it will try the charges of using the mails to defraud, made in indictments returned against Forrest Adair, Sr., Forrest Adair, Jr., Frank Adair and E. A. Ewin, officials of the bankrupt Adair Realty and Trust company, of Atlanta.

Judge Sibley examined every venireman present, after the government and defense counsel had joined in asking for an investigation of alleged jury tampering.

U. S. Denies Charges. Charges had been made by counsel for the Adairs that the government authorities, headed by Federal District Attorney Clint W. Hager, had attempted to intimidate jurors by framing up an ostensible attempt of jury tampering by using A. R. Baker, a department of justice agent, to do "undercover" work in the case.

Denial of the charges was made by the district attorney in his answer filed in court. He said that Ben H. Collier, former sheriff of Jackson county, had attempted to "fix" John H. Potter, a prospective juror, from Winndale, Ga., in favor of the Adairs.

Collier, who is under bond pending grand jury action on charges that he attempted to "fix" prospective jurors in court while the examination of the venire was being conducted. He was not called upon.

Reasons for Dismissal. Most of the jurors dismissed by Judge Sibley were freed from service because they are more than 60 years old, a cause for exemption under the law. Two or three had served in the families and the judge agreed with them home instead of being tied up with court proceedings. Nine members of the panel drawn especially for the Adair trial failed to appear, some of them having removed from the state and several having died.

A legal battle over the charges was ended before it hardly began when the judge announced that the reasonable way out of the matter was to question the jurors and let them say whether they had been approached by persons desiring them to hold out in the case.

Talked to Collier. Two, George D. Appleby and John W. Shields, in answer to questions admitted that they had talked to Ben Collier. When Potter's name was reached, Judge Sibley told him that under the circumstances he did not think that Potter would care to serve as a juror and to this Potter agreed.

Judge Sibley, in expressing confidence in the attorneys, said of the charges: "It looks as if this whole thing centers about Potter, Collier and Baker."

After questioning each of the veniremen present, Judge Sibley said: "I am gratified to find that no systematic attempt has been made to approach these jurors. It is evident that only a sporadic effort has been made."

EULA THOMPSON IS SAVED FROM PENALTY OF DEATH BY GOVERNOR OF GEORGIA

CLUE IN ROTHSTEIN KILLING FURNISHED BY CLOAK MODEL

Woman Identifies at Least One Occupant of Room Where Gambler Met Death.

New York, November 21.—(United News.)—Mrs. Ruth Keyes, petite blond "free-lance" clothing model of Chicago, furnished a baffled New York detective force today with the most valuable information yet unearthed in the Arnold Rothstein murder mystery.

Falling back on the old criminal maxim of "Cheer up la Femme," after 17 days of fruitless round-ups and third-degrees within the city, District Attorney Ranton announced after questioning the Chicago woman that he was much "closer" to a solution of the enigmatic underworld shooting.

Mrs. Keyes, who unwittingly flitted her way into the Rothstein episode, was in room 249 of the Park Central hotel, upper Broadway hostelry, a few minutes before the New York gambler king was mortally wounded there. Meeting an unknown man in the hallway of the hotel, she had consented to join him for a few drinks in the room.

Now, as a result of the roving cloak model's flirtation, the New York police claim to know for the first time who was in room 349 when Rothstein walked through the door to meet his slayer.

And although Mrs. Keyes didn't know it, the coy glances which she threw over her shoulder at a man she knew only as "Jack," probably saved the New York police force from one of the biggest shakeups in its history. Mayor Jimmy Walker, impatient with the slow progress his force was making, was about to let the case fall.

$100,000 SOUGHT TO BUY AIR FIELD

Requisition for Purchase Money Will Be Made to 1929 Finance Committee, Hartsfield Says.

Requisition for $100,000 with which to purchase Candler field will be made to the 1929 finance committee of city council when that body begins making up the 1929 finance sheet, it was announced Wednesday by Alderman William B. Hartsfield, chairman of the aviation committee of city council.

Mr. Hartsfield's announcement came on the heels of a warning issued Tuesday night by William F. MacCracken, assistant secretary of commerce in charge of aeronautical activities of the United States government, that unless Atlanta takes immediate steps to acquire and improve the Candler field, it will lose its advantage as the natural aviation center of the south and east and will be superseded by another and more progressive city.

Urges Buying of Tract. "I feel that we should set up the $100,000 purchase price of Candler field at the first of the year and purchase the tract immediately," Mr. Hartsfield said. "It is of prime importance that we do buy the tract. There are many aviation companies which are loathe to locate at a field which is held under a lease, because they wish to make permanent investments."

"Purchase of Candler field should not depend on a bond issue. If we wish to make further improvements, we can do that by a bond issue, but I am convinced that Atlanta must buy the tract at once or be handicapped materially in development of Atlanta as an aviation center. For this reason I shall insist that the 1929 finance committee take the necessary steps to acquire the property at once. There are 297 acres in the tract and it is offered for $100,000. This is about $300 an acre. No property that close to Atlanta and certainly no property within a woman's throw of Hartsfield could be bought for that price."

Help From County. "Fulton county should be asked to contribute in a material way towards the purchase of the plot, but if it does not accede to the request of council, Atlanta must acquire it. Development

'Feel Like Different Person,' Eula, Saved From Chair, Says

Eula Elrod Thompson, her death sentence commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Hardman, gave voice to cries of gladness in the county jail at Chatsworth, where she has been imprisoned since the state's chief executive granted her a respite 24 hours before she was to go to the electric chair.

Woman Almost Beside Herself With Joy as News of Commutation Reaches Her.

Chatsworth, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—When apprised by The Constitution of her long distance telephone of the governor's action in commuting her death sentence to life imprisonment, Eula Thompson was almost beside herself with joy, her jailers reported.

"Oh, I feel just like a different person!" she exclaimed joyously, jail attendants declared. "I'm just so happy I don't know what to do." She kept repeating these expressions over and over, officials said, and tears of happiness streamed down her face.

During her stay in jail here the condemned woman had expressed various attitudes in regard to her predicament, sometimes apparently having resigned herself to a death in the electric chair and at other times hoping intensely that the governor would intervene between her and her seemingly imminent doom.

Mrs. Thompson was returned to the local jail following the governor's reprieve granted nearly two months ago.

DEATH SENTENCE CHANGED TO LIFE TERM BY HARDMAN

FULL PENALTY PAID BY MEN IN CASE

Hardman Says Records of Case Do Not Show That Woman Was Conspirator in Slaying.

Governor L. G. Hardman late Wednesday afternoon commuted Eula Elrod Thompson's death sentence to a sentence of life imprisonment. The commutation came on the eve of the day set for the submission of a final plea in behalf of the condemned woman, who was under a sentence of death in the electric chair following her conviction of complicity in the killing of Coleman Osborne, a merchant of Chatsworth.

Action by the governor in saving the life of the condemned woman brings to an end for the present one of the most interesting murder cases in Georgia in many years. Clifford Thompson, husband of Mrs. Thompson, and Jim Moss, a negro, have paid the penalty for their part in the murder, having been executed at Milledgeville several months ago. Although Mrs. Thompson also was convicted in the case the governor granted her a 60-day respite just before the date for her execution had arrived and this respite was due to expire November 24.

Not Conspirator in Slaying. The governor granted the commutation on the grounds that the records and evidence did not show that Mrs. Thompson was guilty of a conspiracy to kill Osborne but at the most was guilty of entering a conspiracy to rob the dead merchants on the night the killing occurred.

It was pointed out also by the governor that two judges of the supreme court declared in dissenting opinions that the evidence in the case was not sufficient to prove a conspiracy against the woman. The state prison commission held a hearing in the case several weeks ago and submitted a recommendation to the governor that Mrs. Thompson's death sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Details of Murder. According to the evidence in the case, Mrs. Thompson, accompanied by her husband and Jim Moss, a negro, drove to Chatsworth from their home near Etowah, Tenn., on the night the killing occurred. It was testified that they were hauling gasoline and when they ran out of gasoline they drove to Osborne's store. The car was parked near the store and Thompson and Moss went to the store to buy gasoline. While the two men were at the store they called Osborne from his bedroom and he came to the store to serve them. Soon after they arrived at the

Catarth is Terrible Drain on Vitality

Find a man, woman or child who is afflicted with chronic catarth of the nose and its connecting air passages and you will always find a patient who is most susceptible to more serious diseases. Why? Science explains that catarth interferes with natural breathing thus preventing proper oxygenation and purification of the blood by the lungs and also absolutely prevents, restful, refreshing sleep. Catarth is a constant drain upon the nutrition of the body, making the patient weak and thereby susceptible to all germ infections such as colds, flu, pneumonia, etc.

Your physician will tell you that catarth is a local condition, not a systemic disease. You must fight it constantly with a local remedy that reaches the spot. Of the many remedies that have been tested for the relief of catarth, none has given such uniformly successful results to the physician or attained such popular favor as the prescription of Dr. Runion, known to your druggist as Runion's White Wonder Salve. Applied in the nostrils, morning and night, "White Wonder" gives quick and most delightful relief. Clean, greaseless and absolutely stainless, White Wonder is a perfect example of the finest pharmaceutical art—a joy and comfort to everyone who suffers with nasal catarth.

EMORY LAW STUDENT DIES IN BLAZING HOME

J. L. Fleming, 28, Had Run Back Into Fire To Recover His Property.

Entering his residence for the third time in an effort to save his personal property, J. L. Fleming, 28 years old, of Emory, S. C., law student at Emory university, was trapped by smoke and fire and burned to death Wednesday morning.

Fleming and his wife had been summoned from their bedroom by a negro servant girl, while the fire, believed to have been caused by igniting of gasoline, was spreading rapidly. Fleming and his wife rushed out of their home, a garage-residence, in the rear of 33 Emory drive.

Twice Fleming ran back into the blazing rooms to save his books, trunk and other property. Though his wife pleaded with him, he entered again and on his third trip failed to come out. His charred remains were found later by firemen.

The building was practically destroyed when fire apparatus arrived. The garage-residence is the property of N. P. Pratt, Jr., located just outside of the Atlanta city limits.

Fleming was to have graduated this year from law school and was considered one of the most brilliant students at Emory university. He had worked his way through the University of South Carolina and Emory and was a Shriner and a York Rite Mason.

His wife formerly was Miss Mary Moore Johnson, of Wrightsville Beach, N. C.

The Lamar Law school at Emory suspended classes Wednesday in memory of Fleming and passed resolutions deploring his death.

The body was sent to Lanford Station, S. C., the home of Fleming's parents, shortly after midnight Wednesday for funeral services and burial.

Bids for approximately $700,000 worth of new school projects, the last to be erected from funds supplied from the 1928 school bond issue, will be opened at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the school administration building at the Walker Street school.

George W. Powell, president of the Atlanta board of education, will officiate at the opening. Members of the board, the bond commission and the school committee of city council, of which Alderman J. Allen Connel, of the fifth ward, is chairman, will act as the board, before which the bids will be announced.

Contractors from Atlanta and many other large cities of the south have filed bids with the board.

As soon as the bids are opened work of tabulation will begin and low bidders announced.

Special meetings of the school board, the bond commission and city council will be called to expedite award of the contracts and the actual start of work on the thirteen structures included in the list.

The buildings on which the bids will be opened are Commercial High, South Boulevard, Samuel Inman, Home Park, Howard, Highland, Slatford, Ragsdale, Moreland, Peoples, Kirkwood, McLendon and Luckie street.

BIDS ON SCHOOL WORK TO BE OPENED TODAY

After a small piece of lead had been removed from his lung by an "operation" in which no instrument was used, Tom Watson Bone, 9-year-old son of Mrs. Mamie Bone, of 301 Connecticut avenue, was in Grady hospital late Wednesday night fighting off an impending attack of pneumonia, induced by the irritation of the lung tissue.

Doctors described his condition as serious, but expressed hope that he would recover if the dread disease could be averted.

The lead lodged in the boy's lung when he was chewing on a toy soldier. The boy choked, gasped and drew the particle into his lung. It seemed to bother him a little at first, but as the irritation grew he was attacked by fits of coughing. Taken to the hospital, doctors decided to operate in an attempt to remove the irritant.

The lad was taken to the operating room and the anaesthetic administered preparatory to starting the incision. Before a knife had been touched to the boy, however, he was seized by an attack of nausea induced by the anaesthetic and the attendant convulsions and coughing dislodged the piece of metal.

Sharp Mercury Rise Predicted By Weatherman

Speedy relief from the first real cold snap of the season is promised by Acting Chief A. H. Scott, of the local United States weather bureau, who predicts "fair and warmer" for Atlanta today. It will be absolutely clear, Mr. Scott stated, with the temperature well above Wednesday's figures.

Wednesday morning brought a minimum of just 30 degrees, weather bureau figures showed, which was the first freeze of the season. The freeze was accompanied by the first killing frost also. Mr. Scott stated, which was exactly two weeks later than the average date for this season, which is November 7. The maximum for Wednesday was 50 degrees.

Today's range will probably be from just below 40 to about 60, Mr. Scott stated.

Temperatures of 48 degrees were recorded Wednesday at Miami and 36 at Jacksonville. Frosts were reported from the interior of southern Texas eastward over the cotton belt, and heavy to killing frosts were general in Georgia.

At Jacksonville frost warnings were broadcast Wednesday throughout Florida, as the weather bureau predicted that high winds which accompanied the second cold snap of the season would die down before night.

Citrus grove owners and growers of tender truck crops were warned that the frost line may extend through the midlands of the Everglades unless breezes continue. Wind Tuesday night prevented frost, the weather bureau said.

GRANGE WOULD END LAND RECLAMATION BY U.S. DEPARTMENT

Washington, November 21.—(AP)—In an effort to stop the creation of new farm land by reclamation processes, a resolution urging the transfer of the interior of the department of agriculture was introduced today before the National Grange by Albert S. Goss, of Washington.

This is the second resolution on this subject brought before the Grange since it has been in convention here, and national officers expressed a belief that the policy will be adopted by the delegates when it comes up for vote later in the week.

Grange leaders said they believed that the department of agriculture favors the reduction of new lands by reclamation, while they held that the federal reclamation service continues to bring forth new reclamation projects. Strong opposition has been voiced in the Grange against the development of the Columbia river, Washington, irrigation project.

President General Makes Annual Report at Convention in Houston.

Houston, Texas, November 21.—(AP)—Memorial services honoring Confederate veterans and members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy who died during the last year occupied the principal session of the national convention of the latter organization here today.

Special tribute to three noted leaders of the Confederacy, Generals J. C. Foster, Felix Robertson and Edgar Taylor, who departed from the thinning ranks of the survivors during last year, was paid.

The presentation of the state flags during the morning session was the most stirring scene of the convention since its opening.

Mrs. W. G. N. Merchant, of Chattanooga, Va., president general of the organization, reviewed the accomplishments of the various committees and made several recommendations to the convention.

In the president's annual report, Mrs. Merchant recommended that a committee be appointed to revise the constitution of the Children of the Confederacy to make it conform to that of the parent organization. She also recommended that $300 be appropriated from the general treasury for the Stewards Jackson loan fund.

The name of Commodore Matthew Fontaine Maury, Confederate naval hero, will be submitted to the hall of fame electors before their next selection in 1930, Mrs. Merchant said. She also reported that progress was being made in procuring the universal use of the term "war between the states" rather than "civil war."

METAL IN LUNG EXPULSED BY BOY BEFORE OPERATION

After a small piece of lead had been removed from his lung by an "operation" in which no instrument was used, Tom Watson Bone, 9-year-old son of Mrs. Mamie Bone, of 301 Connecticut avenue, was in Grady hospital late Wednesday night fighting off an impending attack of pneumonia, induced by the irritation of the lung tissue.

Doctors described his condition as serious, but expressed hope that he would recover if the dread disease could be averted.

The lead lodged in the boy's lung when he was chewing on a toy soldier. The boy choked, gasped and drew the particle into his lung. It seemed to bother him a little at first, but as the irritation grew he was attacked by fits of coughing. Taken to the hospital, doctors decided to operate in an attempt to remove the irritant.

The lad was taken to the operating room and the anaesthetic administered preparatory to starting the incision. Before a knife had been touched to the boy, however, he was seized by an attack of nausea induced by the anaesthetic and the attendant convulsions and coughing dislodged the piece of metal.

Boy Bandit Uses Spring Of Watch in Escape Effort

OFFICERS DISROBE HIM TO PREVENT TROUBLE

Waycross, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—Herbert Craven, boy-bandit of Miami, who recently led a daring escape from state prison authorities near Raiford and who is being held here on several charges, made a novel bid for freedom from the city jail today when he removed the mainspring from his watch and was in the act of picking the lock on his cell door when he was discovered.

Craven, a youngster who gave his age as 15, but who appears to be about 20, told a thrilling story of his recent escape from Florida authorities.

If they get me back to Florida, he said, "it will mean life for me. They have five offenses against me, and you know five offenses in Florida is good for life in the jug. But I'm not worrying about that. Thirty days at Raiford will be my limit."

The youngster was arrested here on a charge of auto theft, being assigned to the city jail to await an investigation. Developments showed that he had stolen a roadster from Miami, the owner of which came to Waycross today to recover his car.

He also stole another roadster from J. G. Vaughn, of Jacksonville, this being discovered when Craven dispatched a telegram to Argyle, Ga., notifying his brother there to take care of his car he had left in a garage there. Police investigation says that the car in Argyle bore a Florida license tag, and the ownership of the car was traced in that way.

A telegram from police authorities in Miami notified local authorities of the alleged desperate character of the youthful prisoner, stating that Craven is known as a "bad egg" and that the closest guard would be necessary to hold him in jail. "Can unlock cell doors" and "can get out of handcuffs" the telegram from Miami read. "Take his clothes away from him and you can keep him," the message warned.

Acting on the suggestion of Miami, following Craven's attempt to pick his way out of his cell, local authorities removed his clothes from him. They discovered no trace of saw blades, master keys or anything that would suggest escape. They believe, however, that the removal of his clothes is the best means of assuring his "permanency" as a prisoner.

"Be good, and don't let 'em bring you back to a jug like this," Craven waved at a prisoner who was being released from a nearby cell. The inspiration for this warning note, and his reference to "a jug like this" was probably the action of Chief of Police Fred Justice in placing an extra padlock and chain on the cell door as a double precaution.

Craven told a fellow prisoner the entire story of his recent escape from Raiford authorities. Nine prisoners were liberated through Craven's cunning.

He was doing three years for highway robbery, he said, and things looked gloomy for an escape, when he was touched by the chief of police. A section of the state for penal service. He was placed, along with a batch of prisoners, in a heavy prison cage mounted on a motor truck, and the cross-country journey was begun.

He had in his possession, he said, without explaining where he got it, a master key that would unlock the door of the cage, but he was unable to reach the lock on the outside. At his wits end, he finally contrived a possible means of unlocking the door. He tied the key on his shoe string, dangled it through the bars and through painstaking efforts managed to drop it into the keyhole, aided by the undulations and the awing of the truck. His cunning "turned the trick," and Craven, followed by nine of "his fellow prisoners, dashed for liberty.

He managed to find his way to a farm yard where he secured clothing from a back yard clothes line, and in this disguise he tramped to Miami, he said, where he was among friends.

At Miami he stole the automobile which was in his possession when he was arrested here. When he stole the Jacksonville automobile is not clearly known.

PROBE OF FEDERAL PRISON IS CLOSED

U. S. Agents Leave Atlanta To Make Report to Mrs. Willebrand.

Thomas C. Wilcox, C. C. Spear, W. M. Boland and other agents of the department of justice, conducting a probe of the Atlanta federal penitentiary Wednesday withdrew from Atlanta and were en route to Washington.

This action on the part of the agents followed an investigation last Tuesday and Friday of the institution by a congressional committee which gave Warden John W. Snook a clean bill after quizzing Wilcox and others relative to a number of charges of favoritism filed against the warden.

It also came on the heels of publication Sunday morning by The Constitution of a story concerning a circular letter Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrand has sent prison wardens telling them that secret investigations by bogus prisoners, who are in reality department agents, will be a regular routine policy in the future.

Mrs. Willebrand also virtually admitted in her letter that she planted William Larsen, a department of justice agent, in the Atlanta pen, under the name of "Peter Hanson." Her communication stated that her failure to notify wardens of her decision sooner had "caused a misunderstanding with one of them."

The agents left the Anselmy hotel late Tuesday and announced they were returning to Washington. There it is expected they will file their report with Mrs. Willebrand, who is assistant attorney general in charge of federal prisons. She will arrive in Washington either today or Friday, according to reports.

News of the "plant" in the prison was first carried by The Constitution, and it was publication of this story which caused Attorney General John Sargent to summon Warden Snook to Washington for a conference, where the warden was grilled by Mrs. Willebrand about a number of stories appearing in The Constitution.

Congressman John G. Cooper, of Georgia, headed the congressional committee, which probed the charges against the warden. The committee made public a formal statement of their findings in which they gave the official a clean bill and commended him for the excellent manner in which the local institution has been conducted.

Thomas M. Bell, congressman from the ninth Georgia district, was a member of the congressional investigation body, and told of the letter which Mrs. Willebrand has circulated to the warden of federal penitentiaries.

He declared he would fight such a policy as "un-American and not to be tolerated." He will be joined in his crusade by Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia.

Larsen is alleged to have been sent up for a year-and-a-day from Detroit for violation of the national prohibition laws. There is no record which investigators for The Constitution have been able to locate of his conviction of "Hanson." He was admitted to the Atlanta pen as prisoner No. 26206 and served about three months of his term.

When the Atlanta police board declined to recommend him for a parole, for which he had applied, he was referred to Leavenworth and later liberated.

SELECTION OF ADAIR JURY IS BEGUN

by unauthorized parties and I will not at this time go into the matter of contempt proceedings against those responsible. The matter is being handled through other channels and will be investigated by the federal grand jury. It is sufficient at this time to discover whether these defendants can secure fair trial.

Confer With Sibley.

At the luncheon recess counsel on both sides conferred with Judge Sibley and a tentative agreement was reached to discharge from further service seven men mentioned in connection with the alleged jury tampering. Judge Sibley reaffirmed his confidence in attorneys for both sides and said that he would take the petitions filed by the defense counsel and district attorney in connection with the alleged jury tampering charges under advisement before they became a matter of public record.

Reuben Arnold, one of the attorneys for the Adairs, objected to the petitions going into the record. "In my 41 years of practice," he said, "I have never had such charges brought against me and I don't wish them before the public now unless I am given an opportunity to produce testimony that they are untrue."

Hager Also Objects.

District Attorney Hager objected to the petitions going on record for the same reason.

Selection of a jury began in the afternoon, when both government and defense attorneys began for trial and stated they had no intention of delaying the case. All four defendants were in court during the entire day and assisted their counsel particularly in the selection of a jury.

The indictments charged that the Adairs and Erwin floated bonds to promote hotel projects in Little Rock, Birmingham and Knoxville, when their company was in an unsound financial condition.

Severance Plea Overruled.

A request for a severance by Erwin was overruled by Judge Sibley at the morning session. During the afternoon, both sides agreed to consolidation of the three indictments.

The 10 jurors accepted today were: Benjamin A. Herrin, of Cornelia, a farmer; Clifford G. Kinney, of Cornelia, a banker; Alvin M. Barron, of Clarkeville, a farmer; Thomas Fraser, Jr., of Buford, a farmer; Benjamin H. Moore, of Gainesville, a furniture dealer; W. B. Young, of Cornelia, a farmer; John W. Sloan, of Gainesville, a farmer; Birdie Seargeant, of Jackson county, a farmer; William L. Clarke, of Flory, a farmer; and James and Jack H. Elrod, of Gainesville, a grocer.

Ask Thorough Investigation.

District Attorney Hager in his petition, joined in the previous request of the defense counsel for a thorough investigation of the tampering charges.

The district attorney requested Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley to question every prospective juror whether he is "a fair and impartial juror" and that this be done before the cases are called for trial. This petition was in answer to charges made by the defense that an agent of the department of justice had been active in "interviewing, prejudicing and intimidating"

Judge Sibley took up this morning consideration of the petition which had been filed before him Monday by the defense.

Arthur G. Powell and Marion Smith, Atlanta attorneys of the officials of the bankrupt Adair Realty and Trust company, who charged that agents of the federal grand jury, trial was set in federal court here today.

Repeated Motion's Testimony.

Hager's petition repeated in substance testimony brought out at the preliminary hearing in Atlanta Monday when Ben F. Collier, former sheriff of Jackson county, was held up for $1,000 bond for the federal grand jury on charges of tampering with the venire drawn in the Adair case.

He alleged that Collier had attempted to "fix" a juror in behalf of the Adairs. This allegation was denied in the petition of the Adair attorneys, which charged that agents of the department of justice had been attempting to intimidate the prospective jurors.

The district attorney denied all allegations of intimidation. He said no juror had been interviewed except John H. Potter and then only after Potter had been arrested and that he did not discuss the case except to ask Potter if he had been approached by Ben F. Collier.

He charged that agents of the department of justice had been attempting to intimidate the prospective jurors.

Would Admit Losses.

Ben Conyers and Marion Smith, counsel for the Adairs, said tonight that the defendants would admit the contention of the government that hundreds of people scattered over the United States and some in foreign countries had bought bonds for the hotel project which the government contends was a fraud, and that they lost money.

"We expect to carry our fight to the jury," Mr. Conyers declared. "We do not demur to the indictments, and have no objection to any special factar trial during trial proceedings. It is before the jury that we expect to have the witnesses called."

"Let them put on a witness to stand and testify that he bought the bonds and lost his money and we will admit it," Mr. Conyers said.

Would Simplify Trial.

Both Conyers and Smith said that this probably would simplify the trial and that it would be unnecessary to prolong it.

Mr. Hager, U. S. District attorney, had said the trial probably would last five weeks, but defense attorneys said tonight this probably would be cut considerably by the admission of the government's contention that purchases of the bonds had cost money and that the major portion of the time would be taken up with introduction of documents and figures by the government.

EULA THOMPSON SAVED FROM CHAIR

store several shots were fired and Coleman was mortally wounded. Thompson and Moss returned to the car and with Mrs. Thompson drove back to the Tennessee town, according to the evidence. They were arrested several days later and Osborne's wife testified that she recognized Thompson's voice at the time he is alleged to have shot her husband.

Thompson protested that he was innocent in the case as also the negro, Just before the execution of Thompson and the negro, Mrs. Thompson, at the time confined in the Fulton county Jail, issued a confession in which she declared that Thompson and the negro were innocent and that she had hired another negro to do the killing. She said in this confession that she conspired with a prominent citizen of Murray county to kill Osborne. Later Mrs. Thompson repudiated this confession and made another confession in which she exonerated her husband but implicated the negro Moss.

Governor's Statement.

The governor's statement granting the commutation to Mrs. Thompson is as follows:

"A sixty days' respite has been granted to Mrs. Eula Mae Thompson for the purpose of studying her case relative to a conspiracy on her part as a ringleader to this crime, and after due consideration and a careful study of the case, I hereby concur in the recommendation of the prison commission, and commute the death sentence of Mrs. Eula Thompson to life imprisonment on the grounds that the records and evidence now show a conspiracy to take the life of Coleman Osborne, but probably at the most, a conspiracy to rob Coleman Osborne."

"Two supreme court justices have declared that the evidence was not sufficient to prove a conspiracy on her part, but that the evidence at the most was not strong. The evidence does not show that Mrs. Eula Mae Thompson actually participated in the robbery or in the murder, but that Clifford Thompson and Jim Hugh Moss did participate in the robbery and committed the murder."

"Further, for the life of Coleman Osborne, two other lives have already been taken, namely, Clifford Thompson and Jim Hugh Moss."

"I read and directed that the sentence of Mrs. Eula Mae Thompson be, and the same is hereby commuted to life imprisonment and life service, and the 21st day of November, 1928."

L. G. HARDMAN, Governor.

Mrs. Thompson is now confined in the jail at Chatworth in Murray county. She will be taken before the trial judge in the case and resentence after which she will be taken to the state prison farm at Milledgeville to begin serving her term.

the bill and is destined to rank with rail and water transportation.

Just before the start of the business session of the conference an executive committee of the governors' conference was elected consisting of Governor Trumbull, Connecticut; Derr, Utah; Long, Louisiana; Case, Rhode Island; and Hammill, Iowa.

Later they will choose a chairman. The next conference will be held somewhere in New England but the city will not be chosen until tomorrow, when the governors will gather at a farewell social party. Officers have adjourned, however, and tomorrow will attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which also is meeting here.

THUGS RETORT TO PROSECUTOR

building with a dynamite bomb—their weapons of intimidation.

The home of the state's attorney-elect is only a block and a half from the plant and police and neighbors rushed to the Swanson residence when they heard the loud blast. Swanson's home and that of United States Senator Charles S. Deneen were damaged by bombs dropped in the campaign in the spring primary.

The building wrecked today is a branch of the Becker Cleaning and Dyeing company. The fact that it was the closest plant located to the Swanson home was taken as an indication of their defiance to his threat to put an end to racketeering.

The fight between opposing racketeers in the cleaning and dyeing business has been waged with more bitterness than those in other lines and Swanson's fight undoubtedly would be opened against them.

"I will put an end to racketeering," Swanson said in his campaign and since being elected state's attorney, "Life and property are at stake and my election means the law-abiding citizens want the racketeers put out of business."

"I will get a capable staff to assist me and I will clean up the law-abiding citizens want the racketeers put out of business."

Detectives on the south side were ordered today to question all members of the cleaning and dyeing business in this latest bombing, fearing it may signal the resumption of warfare between opposing factions.

The bomb apparently had been planted in the doorway of the cleaning company. Plate glass was shattered and things blown away by the blast. Lives of five persons sleeping on the second floor were imperiled but all escaped uninjured.

STUDENT QUARREL ENDS IN FATALITY

two local colleges. The shooting came just three days before the annual football game between the two schools.

Painting of a newly completed building at Birmingham-Southern by a Howard student opened the rivalry between the two schools.

Since that time there has been almost constant rivalry between students of the two institutions, hair-dressing being one of the principal items in the conflicts.

At one time the city officials and officials of the two schools threatened to call off the annual game between the two schools in the event that the disturbances continued.

Special police guards also had been established on the campuses of both schools to guard against disturbances.

In many of these instances, police were summoned to free the intended victims and to thwart any possibility of disorder or violence.

CLUES TO KILLING GIVEN BY MODEL

when the attractive young model was found.

Today he said he believed the police were "doing their utmost."

Although District Attorney Banton announced that the developments revealed by Mrs. Keyes' story of the drinking bee in room 349 must be guarded with utmost secrecy, enough of the details were noised about to assure the public that progress really had been made by the detectives on the case.

The unofficial reports were along this line:

"That the man known as 'Jack,' who is supposed to be a Georgia 'Hump' McManus, gambling associate and trusted friend of Rothstein. That two gunmen were with him in the room when Rothstein was summoned to the room from Lindy's restaurant a few blocks away."

That Rothstein was asked point-blank if he intended to pay the $200,000 in I. O. U.'s he had lost in a stud poker game seven weeks previously.

That he replied, "Hell, no," and was promptly shot.

McManus, for whom detectives have searched since the night of the shooting, when he dashed from the room wearing Rothstein's topcoat and leaving his behind, still is believed innocent of any part in the shooting. He appears to have been only a horrified spectator.

The police are believed to know the identity of the gunmen, for Mrs. Keyes spent much time today looking at pictures of the men.

Newsbutcher Harrison Believes Prayers Answered

Dan C. (Barney) Harrison, news butcher on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, has had his dreams, prayers and hopes answered. His newly-found sweetheart, Eula Elrod Thompson, convicted as a murderer, will not go to the electric chair, for Governor Hardman has reversed her death sentence and decreed life imprisonment.

For weeks, Barney has prayed that Eula would be saved from the chair. When the governor made his decision late Wednesday, Barney was peddling his wares somewhere between here and Knoxville, Tenn., not knowing that his prayers had been answered.

Told of His Love.

During these weeks, Barney has confided to railroad men of his great love for the condemned woman, who is alleged to have aided her husband, Clifford, and a negro, Jim Moss, in the slaying of Coleman Osborne, Chattanooga storekeeper. Both her husband and the negro have since paid the death penalty. Eula was to have died September 22 but for a respite and since then her life has hung on the governor's decision.

"Barney's love for Eula Thompson is real," a local trainman said Wednesday night. "Barney talks of her constantly and he is in earnest."

It was a bit of his great drama—love at first sight. Barney was walking in the "rogue's gallery" at police headquarters.

Asked if she had been able to establish identification, the district attorney would only reply:

"I'd rather not say—but I'll have some valuable news for you in a day or two."

One new sensation sprang from the case today to heighten the excitement over the blood cloak model's revelations.

A wild-eyed young man with ruffled hair was whisked into the district attorney's office and whisked out again by a pair of detectives. He was said to have told them he was an eye-witness to the shooting.

$20,000,000 FLOOD LOSS FOR KANSAS, SURVEY INDICATES

Kansas City, November 21.—(AP)—After a survey of the devastated areas in the flood wrecked valleys of southeast Kansas, Walter H. Chappell, Chanute, director of flood control of Southeastern Kansas, Inc., declared tonight in a long distance telephone call to the Associated Press that the most important problem before the coming session of congress was that of flood control. He estimated property damage in Kansas alone at around $20,000,000.

"There are, no doubt, pressing problems facing the coming session of congress," Mr. Chappell said. "But none is more important than that of flood control. The flood situation in Kansas and particularly in southeastern Kansas, emphasizes the importance of federal action."

The proposal of Herbert Hoover to create a $20,000,000 fund for nationwide construction in slack times was brought formally before the convention of the American Federation of Labor today.

The labor men sat with rapt attention while John P. Fry, secretary of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, read the address of Governor Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, in which he outlined the construction plan earlier in the day to the governors' conference at the request of the president-elect.

At the conclusion of the reading, the proposal took its regular place in the order of business but it is expected to be called up again tomorrow when the governors, who plan to adjourn their conference tonight instead of tomorrow, will attend the labor convention as private citizens.

The morning session was devoted mainly to an address by John Marchbank, assistant industrial general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen of Great Britain, who told of the unemployment in the British Isles.

"Government figures," he said, "show there are 1,384,000 unemployed in the nation but that is far from being the actual figures when all men and women and their dependents are taken into consideration. At the present time 633,000 persons are receiving poor relief and thousands are working part time and moving on the border line of poverty. Members in the British trade unions, he said, had fallen off due to legislation and other things. But the union work goes on, he added, and a movement is now afoot to create a college for the education of workers so that they will better understand labor organizations.

MANUFACTURERS OPEN
SALES MEETING TODAY337 Business Executives From 13 States To Convene at Biltmore.

Final analysis of the expected attendance at the first annual Southern Manufacturers' sales conference, to be held today at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, shows that 337 business and manufacturing executives from 13 states and the District of Columbia are planning to attend.

J. P. McGrath, secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Manufacturers' association and secretary of the conference committee, announced Wednesday night that some of the speakers already had arrived. His analysis indicates that the attendance will be composed of business men, manufacturers, public utilities and transportation company officials from the following states: Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, North Carolina, New York, Virginia, South Carolina, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Maryland, Florida and Louisiana.

New Selling Problems.
These people will meet to study every phase of the newly-arisen distribution and selling problem which has developed with increasing strength since 1920. Business students generally regard the period before 1920 as the time when manufacturing methods were, primarily, decisive factors in a manufacturer's success or failure. Since then the competition for markets and for the buyer's dollar have become so keen that the emphasis has been shifted from the manufacturing end to the selling and distribution end of the business.

The formal program for the day will be opened by an invocation by Dr. David Marx, rabbi of the temple. Governor L. G. Hardman will deliver the address of welcome.

James L. Madden, third vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, will outline the purposes of the conference and the reasons which led his company to cooperate with the six trade associations which are sponsoring the all-day session.

Callaway to Speak.
Cason J. Callaway, president of the Hillside Cotton mills, will discuss the effect of proper merchandising on the volume of textile sales.

Hugh Merrill, Jr., editor of the Southern Furniture Journal, High Point, N. C., will take up "Market Analysis and Furniture Style Trends."

Paul Bonner, vice president of the Stahl Silks corporation, of New York city, in his talk on "Organizing for Style and Design," will explain how his firm determines months in advance the texture and quality of silk which the women of America will demand in their cloaks and dresses. Through this pre-determined knowledge his company regulates all of its manufacturing and sales activities.

Kline to Mark Changes.
Raymond A. Kline, of the Davidson-Paxon company, of New York city, on the formal list of speakers, will explain the changes which he, as a merchandising man, has observed among the ultimate consumers and indicate the manner in which both manufacturers and merchants can adapt this change to their own benefit by selling the people exactly what they want.

Luncheon will be served in the Pompeian room of the Biltmore at 12:30 o'clock. The Rev. N. R. High Moor, of St. Luke's Episcopal church, will ask the blessing.

Selling of Lumber.
John F. Carter, of the Southern Pine association, New Orleans, La., has as the topic of his speech "New Ideas in Merchandising Lumber."

B. Mifflin Hood, president of the B. Mifflin Hood Brick company, will build his talk about the "Value of Style and Design in Selling Ceramics."

C. E. Shaw, manager of sales research of the Dennison Manufacturing company, Framingham, Mass., will explain the research work of the Dennison company which has led to a much more effective utilization of its salesmen's time.

Open Discussion.
The formal program will be followed by an open discussion on the points emphasized by the various speakers. Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power company and chairman of the conference committee, will preside at both the morning and afternoon sessions.

The Atlanta Merchants' and Manufacturers' association, the Cotton Manufacturers' association, the Georgia Manufacturers' association, the Southern Clay Products association, the Southern Furniture Manufacturers' association and the Southern Sash, Door and Millwork Manufacturers' association are sponsoring the conference in cooperation with the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Morton Address.
"The Need of Recreational and Educational Facilities for Negro Children" will be the subject of an address by James Morton, executive secretary of the committee on church cooperation at the City club meeting today in the pine room, Ansley hotel.

Eczema Caused Years of Intense Agony

"I have suffered intense agony from eczema on my leg and other parts of my body for years, and received only temporary relief from other preparations. It is only a month since I started to use Peterson's Ointment, and there is no sign of eczema or itching. You can refer to me."—Geo. C. Talbot, Buffalo.

"I've got a hundred testimonials," says Peterson of Buffalo, "just as sincere and honest as this one. Years ago, when I first started to put out Peterson's Ointment, I made up my mind to give a generous box for 35 cents, and I am still doing it, as every druggist in the country knows."

"I guarantee Peterson's Ointment because I know that its mighty healing power is marvellous, and it is rigidly guaranteed for eczema, old sores, ulcers, skin diseases, chafing, burns, scalds and sunburn, and if not satisfactory your money will be returned."—(adv.)

ATLANTA MUST NOT FAIL.

It was a serious warning that

William P. MacCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce in charge of aviation, sounded to the

evening relative to this city's hap-pazard and inadequate pretenses at building an air port.

The warning came not merely from an authority on aviation development, which is decidedly more rapid than was that of any other method of commercial transportation in its pioneer years, but from the one government official who is charged with passing on ports and fields.

Failure of Atlanta to provide adequate airport facilities not only will mean that Atlanta will lose the four important air mail routes she has obtained, to Miami, New Orleans,

New York and Chicago but will mean that the southern trans-continental route would go to some other city, he warned. If Atlanta loses the trans-continental route, which is sure to be established in the near future, it will mean a serious handicap to the business men of Atlanta in Latin American trade.

"Atlanta can well afford to spend $500,000 to acquire and improve its municipal airport," Mr. Mac-Cracken said. "I should think that $500,000 would be justified as a minimum for this purpose."

Certainly it can. And it should.

This is an inland city. It has not the advantages of a deep-water port, although it has equally as good water-port possibilities as had Houston, when, backed by the indomitable will of the people, a lazy little stream making its way to the gulf

was converted into a great canal for ocean ships.

But Atlanta does possess a geographical location which makes it the natural distributing center of the southeast, and which made it the great railroad hub of the south-

And this same geographical position makes it the natural aviation hub of the southeast, provided—and provided only—that the city arises to an understanding of what must be done in order to comport with government airport requirements, and then with vigor, will,

and necessary funds, properly capitalizes that understanding.

To be bluntly frank, too many of our people, including some of the city and county officials, are entirely too indifferent to the potentialities of a great Atlanta airport, second to none in this country, and certainly in the south.

In five years commercial air transportation will be as definitely fixed, in all branches of transport service, as present rail and maritime and highway motor services.

People will be traveling in private planes as they travel today in private cars on the rails and private touring automobiles on the highways. Ships of the air, not only for short distance travel, but for trans-continental and transoceanic travel, and for all public chartered services, will have their bases in every direction, as the trade lanes of the ocean are charted today, and as steel rails reach from fixed destination to destination.

Atlanta will lose out, unless decisive, militant action is taken, and it is a problem that cannot be temporized with. We stand today at the cross-roads of opportunity.

In the proposed general bond issue, scheduled for a referendum early in the new year, this airport issue must find its place.

The question must be settled one way or the other without side-stepping.

There are enough leaves blowing about without one going into the country and coming home with a car full of autumn foliage.

A fellow in the east purchased an old chest at a sale of unclaimed debt and was awarded with 22 quarts of 40-year-old wine. That night his house was robbed of 20 of the bottles. "Wine is a mock-

MAKE STREETS SAFE AT ONCE.

The fatalities in traffic accidents in the Atlanta zone during the past few weeks have precipitated a situation that is acutely alarming.

The toll in deaths and casualties is far in excess, comparatively speaking, of war. And something must be done to arrest these accidents, in the name of humanity, and—cold-bloodedly speaking—in the interest of the economic welfare of this city and community.

This is the great trading center of the southeast. Atlanta has the largest retail and department store trade of any city in the sixth federal reserve district, and it is growing more rapidly than in any other city, as shown by statistics.

Visitors must not become apprehensive as to the safety of Atlanta's streets. Thousands of them motor to the city each week, from all sections of Georgia and from other states, to "shop," and incidentally to go to the theater, and to enjoy a day or more of cosmopolitan life.

It is one of the big assets of the city—its ability to attract by reason of its superior merchandising advantages, its fine and ample hotel facilities, and the character and variety of amusements and cultural activities.

It is the duty of every citizen to cooperate in maintaining and broadening this very enviable situation.

The most important and most outstanding way to cooperate is to keep the streets safe by being safety minded, observing traffic laws, and thus setting good examples to visitors to do the same thing.

Two men were killed in traffic accidents Tuesday, and many others were injured. According to reports one of these unfortunate victims made a "wild dash" through moving motor traffic to board a street car for his home. If he had been safety minded at the time he was living today, and the home that he very properly was anxious to reach, would not be shrouded in gloom and sorrow.

Practically all traffic accidents are avoidable. And they should be avoided to as great a degree as it is humanly possible. Why will not people "watch their step," literally speaking if pedestrians, and figuratively speaking, if motorists?

The holiday trading season is upon us. The streets will be more congested for the next 30 days than usual because there will be more visiting automobiles in the city than during other months.

The police department should at once increase its traffic squad, broaden its scope of vigil, and enforce the laws to the limit without favor or immunity.

In the meantime we appeal to every citizen of Atlanta to keep safety in the mind at all times when they enter the streets to either walk or drive. Parents should caution their children. Everybody should cooperate in seeing that lives and limbs are conserved, and that would-be visitors should not become frightened away by reason of the unusual wave of accidents that has recently swept over this territory.

In frankness we believe this appeal will be heeded, and feel assured that from this day forward the holiday season will be as free, or more free from accidents, than during any

THE SALES CONFERENCE.

Atlanta extends a cordial welcome to the hundreds of business and industrial executives gathered

sales conference. Preston S. Ark-wright, president of the Georgia Power company, will preside. The delegates are here from every state and section of the south. New ideas in merchandising, in every line of trade, and a closer coordination between the manufacturer and the distributor, and closer cooperation between all sales agencies of all lines are the high spots in the objectives sought.

The conference immediately follows the closing of the southeastern foreign trade conference, which was the most successful meeting of the kind ever held in this country, the results of which will go a far way in stimulating southern export trade, not only in manufactured goods, but in farm staples and in perishables.

GEORGIA'S SMITH VOTE.

On November 6, Governor Smith, democratic candidate for president, received a total of 129,662 votes in Georgia.

This is the largest vote given a candidate for president since the vote for Tilden in 1876, when the

Produce.

Prospective operation of regular refrigerated ship lines to the United Kingdom, and continental Europe within the near future for transportation of Georgia and Florida fruits may be supplemented by a similar line to South America, according to General A. C. Dalton, vice president and general manager of the Merchant Fleet corporation, subsidiary of the United States shipping board, who visited Atlanta Wednesday.

General Dalton said that the big difficulty to be solved in the establishment of a refrigerated ship line to South America lies in the long haul and lack of a return cargo. This might be worked out, however, by the use of the dry cold air circulating system, instead of the wet refrigeration system. The wet system employs brine pipes in the fruit storage compartment, where the dry system utilizes a cooling plant in a separate compartment, which circulates cold air to the fruit compartment by means of conductors. The fruit storage space could be shut off from the refrigerating machine in the dry air system and used for cargo which does not require refrigeration, he said.

Two refrigerated ships have been sold by the government to the South Atlantic Steamship corporation, and two others have been sold to another company, and the second company has made an offer for a third refrigerated ship, he said.

With the demand of South America for North American products constantly growing, there may be developed a strong demand for Georgia and Florida fruits, thereby leading to the establishment of the refrigerated line to South America, General Dalton said. He said that he believes the shipment of fruit to other countries to be perfectly practical with the use of the dry cold air system, as this system does not allow the fruit to sweat.

Lack of proper organization to arrange the marketing and financing of fruit shipments is the big difficulty facing the grower today, General Dalton said. "Cooperation, coordination, standardization and organization, the four watch-words of the industry, should be applied to agriculture."

INFIDELITY CHARGE MADE BY BARRETT, SUNG FOR DIVORCE

Institution of divorce proceedings by Frank Barrett, and issuance of a temporary restraining order to prevent his wife from interfering with his custody of their two children, Wednesday was followed by the issuance of a temporary restraining order forbidding Barrett from visiting his wife, Mrs. Frances Barrett, at the home, 1525 Morrisville drive.

Barrett filed suit for divorce in Fulton superior court on Monday, charging his wife with infidelity and excessive use of intoxicating liquors, and secured an order from Judge E. D. Thomas to prevent Mrs. Barrett from interfering with the two girls, Thyrza Zebulun Barrett, 10, and Ida Lee O'Halloran Barrett, 5, who are with him.

ATLANTA SAILOR DESCRIBES SCENES AS VESTRIS SANK

The drama and the horror of the recent sinking of the liner Vestris is described in a letter recently received by C. H. Taylor, of 477 Robbins street, from his son, John Henry Taylor, who was a fireman on the battleship Wyoming, which aided in the rescue work.

The letter graphically describes the scenes when the Wyoming first arrived at the scene of the sinking. The bodies of the dead and those of the living were mingled in great numbers on the surface of the still angry sea and the sailors were forced to look sharply to detect any bodies which should pick up, for they were acting under orders to save all the living before picking up the bodies of those who were beyond aid.

Young Taylor has served in the navy for about 18 months and was recently made a first-class fireman and assigned to duty aboard the Wyoming.

J. Casey, Baltimore Baker and Municipal Ex- perts Speaks at Bilt- more Tonight.

That business men and methods can improve the on and methods city government is the municipal William J. Casey, president of Continental Trust company, of Baltimore, Md., and vice chairman of Baltimore commission on efficiency and economy which obtained remarkable results in its work in Baltimore. Mr. Casey is in Atlanta to tell to local men of his experience in this connection.

Mr. Casey came to the city at the invitation of Mayor Ragsdale, who had heard of the remarkable work done in Baltimore, and he will be the principal speaker at a dinner to be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the Biltmore hotel, at which time he will relate what the efficiency commission accomplished in four years time.

Interviewed shortly after his arrival Wednesday morning, Mr. Casey was most positive in saying that his work had any political significance. "None of the men with whom I worked in Baltimore was a politician," he stated, "and we had no desire to seek any public office. We simply felt that as large taxpayers we could help the city government by the introduction of successful business methods."

There was no effort, he explained, to upset the normal order of things or to do anything of a revolutionary nature. "We simply put the tools of modern business in the hands of each department and reorganized some of them, so as to prevent overlapping of functions," he stated.

The commission limited its activities to the actual operation of the city government," he declared, "and it did not attempt to deal with public policies, nor with the departments for which there is no parallel in private business, such as education, fire health and police. It did, however, make available to these departments improved methods and systems of accounting, purchasing and business management."

The work of the commission in Baltimore which extended over a period of four years, resulted in the wiping out of the deficit in the operation of the city government, and brought about a substantial reduction in the tax rate.

CENTRAL SCHOOL STUDENTS OFFER MINISTREL SHOW

The Central night school will present its annual production, "Sunshine Minstrels," at the Commercial High school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock tonight. This year's show is under direction of Carroll Summer, principal, who has had the company of students in rehearsal for several weeks in preparation for the performance. Musical accompaniment for the minstrels will be furnished by the school orchestra, under the direction of Robert Lee Horner.

The production is staged yearly as a benefit for the moving picture fund which provides free movies each week for the students.

BRANCH MANAGERS OF ICE COMPANY END CONVENTION

Measures looking to efficient and friendly service and cooperation in teaching proper use of refrigerators were discussed at the two-day convention of 30 branch managers of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Co., which closed Tuesday with a luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel. The branch managers attending came from four southern states.

Richard W. Courts and Frank B. Sites, of Courts & Co., investment bankers, addressed the convention on a plan for making Atlantic Ice & Coal stock available to the consuming public, and additional shares available to employees. Mr. Courts reviewed the history of the corporation, telling of its small beginning and its present annual capacity of 80,000 tons with properties valued at $13,000,000.

W. B. Baker, president, presided over the luncheon ending the session. Mr. Pope, general manager, directed business sessions and spoke on various phases of operations. Other officials attending the convention included Riley, vice G. Gentry and Willshire secretary assistants; F. G. Gordon, George, purchase manager; Zed B. Dinwiddie, Jr., director; James Delivery company, the City Ice man, secretary of the Georgia Ice concern.

DRUGGISTS OF NATION ACCLAIM NEW EPOCH MAKING FORMULA

FACTS ABOUT SARGON.

The Sargon formula has been tested and approved by nationally recognized authorities. They have not only tested the formula itself, but have made exhaustive reports as to its therapeutic potency.

As a result of modern medical research, we have learned that nutrition, health and efficiency often hang in balance for the want of certain substances. Sargon is designed to supply some of these substances.

The Sargon formula is based on modern research and represents some of the latest knowledge of Medical Science on modern therapy.

Over two and one-half years of laboratory research by one of America's greatest bio-chemists were required to perfect it.

Sargon contains certain basic elements which stimulate and invigorate three great mechanisms of the human body on which good health largely depends.

The secret method of combining these basic ingredients in one formula is now the property of the Sargon Laboratories.

In addition to these basic elements, there are other important ingredients contained in Sargon, which are designed to impart general tone and strength to the entire system and are highly valuable for their influence upon the digestion, assimilation and elimination.

Its manufacture and distribution is backed by successful business men and has many years of experience in the manufacture of nationally known products. The names of distribution of nationally known products are household words throughout America.

NATION-WIDE INTEREST IS CREATED BY SARGON

Success of Celebrated Medicine Proves Sensation of Drug Trade—Wide-Awake Druggists Everywhere of Tell of Ever-Increasing Demand.

Never before, perhaps, has the demand for a proprietary medicine ever approached the wonderful record made by Sargon, the new scientific formula which has been accomplishing such remarkable results wherever it has been introduced. Its fame is rapidly spreading over the entire nation and it stands preeminent among proprietary medicines of the country.

Huge wholesale establishments, rated at millions, nationally known chain store organizations and progressive, wide-awake druggists in the smaller cities and towns are writing and wiring in by the thousands, expressing their eagerness to be among the first to supply it to their trade—while others are writing enthusiastic letters telling of the extraordinary merit their customers have found in the preparation and of the record-breaking demand.

Requests for exclusive franchises have probably eclipsed anything the drug trade has ever known. Limited space makes it possible to publish only a few of these.

John B. Daniel Drug Co. Orders Entire Carload

Having learned through advance information that Sargon was to be placed on sale in Atlanta, the John B. Daniel Drug Co., one of the largest and most progressive wholesale drug firms in the entire South, has secured the exclusive wholesale franchise for Sargon for their entire trade territory.

In anticipation of the enormous demand, they immediately placed an order for an entire carload, comprising 14,400 bottles of this celebrated medicine and 7,200 bottles of Sargon Soft Mass Pills. Sargon can now be obtained in Atlanta from Jacobs Pharmacy Company Stores all over Atlanta. A special representative of the Sargon Laboratories can be seen at Jacobs Pharmacy Co.'s main store, 6 and 8 Marietta St., where he will be glad to explain the therapeutic value of Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills to those who are interested. Greatest Wholesale and Retail Drug Firms of America Give Sargon Unqualified En- dorsement—Thousands of Letters Received From Progressive, Up-to-Date Firms Rep- resenting Every State in Union and Every Province in Canada—Immediate Success Wherever Introduced.

Sargon, the celebrated medicine which has been accomplishing such remarkable results throughout the country, is now on sale in Atlanta and will be rapidly distributed throughout the entire state.

The amazing success achieved by this medicine in only five months' time is not only phenomenal, but unprecedented. In each of the larger cities where it was introduced only a few months ago, it has required from 75,000 to 100,000 bottles to supply the ever-increasing demand.

In Kansas City, alone, local wholesale and retail druggists have sold and distributed 100,950 bottles since June 19. Memphis dealers have sold and distributed more than 91,000 since April 17.

In referring to the record-breaking demand they are having, Mr. Robert R. Ellis, president of the Hessig-Elis Drug Co., one of the nation's largest wholesale drug concerns, of Memphis, said:

"Sargon is a wonderful seller, and in our opinion, we are selling more Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills than any other ten medicines we are now handling put together. Practically every one of our customers have sent in repeat orders—some as many as ten repeat orders in the past four months."

Mr. S. O. Davidson, of the Faxon-Gallagher Drug Co., Kansas City, one of the largest wholesale firms in the entire west, said:

"Already Sargon is a wonderful seller—the largest-selling proprietary medicine we have ever handled within the memory of the writer. We have sold an entire carload within the past thirty days. Retailers everywhere throughout our territory are reporting large sales and backing up these reports by repeat orders."

Hundreds of other letters have been received telling of the sweeping success it has attained wherever it has been introduced. Also, thousands upon thousands of others telling of repeat orders that have come in from satisfied users who have testified to its remarkable health-giving powers.

Sargon is the result of the last ten years of world-wide scientific research and represents the latest knowledge of medical science on modern therapy. Keenly alive to the steady march of science, the greatest drug firms of America have been quick to recognize it as a triumph in the field of modern chemistry. Not only have they given it their unstinted praise but their unqualified endorsement as well.

Letters by the thousands from wide-awake druggists, representing every state in the union and every province in Canada have been received. All the way from Maine to California, from Vancouver and Seattle, Hawaii, and from South American countries they have come—inquiring about Sargon and when it will be available to their customers.

ATLANTA DRUG FIRM EAGER TO COOPERATE KATZ BROS. DRUG CO. HIGHLY ENDORSE IT

In Business 50 Years, Atlanta's Biggest Drug Firm Does Not Recall Great Product With Apparent Merit

G. F. Willis, Inc., Atlanta, Ga. Atlanta, Ga. Gentlemen:

Your announcement that is soon to be available for Sargon is one that we received with great deal of genuine interest. A great share of us feel sure, by druggists throughout America.

Our fifty years' experience in the drug business, which has permitted expansion to fourteen stores which we now operate in Georgia, has brought a great number of new products to our attention. Never, however, do we recall introduction to one with greater apparent merit or possibilities than Sargon.

It appears to us that Sargon, possessing a sound basis of therapeutic fact, is undoubtedly in step with the latest progress of medical research. It should become a highly popular preparation.

Be assured that we are eager to co-operate with you to the fullest extent in offering it to our patrons. We believe such a course will be mutually beneficial.

Sincerely yours, JACOB'S PHARMACY, By Sinclair Jacobs, Vice-President.

"SATISFIED PATRONS PROOF OF ITS MERIT"

Manager of Liggett Drug Company Says Demand for Sargon Surpassing All Expectations.

Kansas City, Mo. Atlanta, Ga. Gentlemen:

We are greatly impressed with the results of your new product, Sargon, which we have the pleasure of offering to our friends and patrons. The Sargon formula appears to be original and most unusual and has an apparently unsurpassed scientific background. It very plainly represents the most advanced thought of the modern medical world and we believe that the public is rapidly becoming more and more familiar with Sargon's high therapeutic value.

The past few weeks, during which we have been offering Sargon to our trade, we have had many hundreds of inquiries, not only locally, but from several states. The demand for Sargon has surpassed our greatest expectations, and the numerous repeat sales from satisfied patrons is evidence of its outstanding merit.

Assuring you of our hearty cooperation in the distribution of Sargon in this city, and wishing you all the success which your sincere efforts deserve, we are

THE YOUNG PRETENDERS

By Alice Grant Rosman

SYNOPSIS.
While lying in bed after a motor accident, Hugo Donaldson broods over the fact that his father, with whom he quarreled before the smash, has never come into his room to visit him. He decides that he must be dead and that his mother and the servants are keeping it from him. His aunt, Lady Eleanor Wins, a great gossip, comes to call and tells Hugo that his friend Paul Mostyn is in prison for stealing and that he has married some girl whom his family disapproved of and that Hugo's mother had expected to marry Paul and is heartbroken over the affair. Hugo comes and tells Hugo the story. Paul, she believes, has been the victim of blackmailers, and his family, because of his marriage, had failed to stand back of him in the affair. Hugo assures Paul that she was never engaged to Paul, but because of her lifelong friendship for him she would like to help him.

INSTALLMENT XVI. HUGO IS CONSULTED.

Hugo was to be consulted. That was something new and he guessed that he had his friend Sir John to thank for it. The remembrance of the specialist cheered him, for wasn't he a messenger? Surely when his father heard about his archeological studies and his interest in Syria, he'd be pleased and come round a bit. Sir John might even now be telling him and perhaps after dinner his father would come up at last.

In the face of this new excitement he gave Tright the pen and paper and asked him to push the desk away.

"I have to write a letter, but I'll do it in the morning," he said.

He would feel better in the morning, especially if he had seen his father. Fit as a fiddle that would make him. Perhaps after all Hugo II was not to have a permanent crook for a godfather. For Sir John had said there was a chance, had told him to keep an eye on that, and Hugo had an idea that he could trust Sir John. He wasn't such an awful liar as the rest of them.

"Hugo, darling, I have brought Mrs. Hallett to see you," said his mother. "She has kindly agreed to come and read to you for an hour or two every day if you think you would like that. This is my dear boy, Mrs. Hallett."

Hugo, who was longing to laugh at the odd figure being presented to him, was very proud of his mother at that moment. She really was a darling and Lady of Grace was a title that suited her exactly.

The girl for whom his pretty mother was bringing a chair, was certainly a rum 'un Hugo thought. He didn't know what was the matter with her exactly except that her dress was the wrong length and the wrong shape. She had a straight fringe that hung down under her drooping hat and her eyebrows were two straight lines, not delicately arched and thin and tidy as Bunny's were. She was unlike Bunny altogether; unlike any of the girls he knew. Her complexion was pale and there was no color on her lips. Her whole face had a stillness about it, where Bunny's was full of movement and life and expression, constantly changing.

Then for a moment he saw her eyes, and with that new acuteness of perception which was growing in him, he was aware of a force and beauty about her, something tragic too, in the desperate courage of her glance.

"Hello," said Hugo to himself, "here's another one in the soup."

He felt all at once companionable to Mrs. Hallett.

Leeder, evidently instructed, brought tea rather early and Lady Donaldson went away, leaving the two young people to enjoy it together and talk things over.

"Tright will bring you down when you are ready, Mrs. Hallett. You will see to that, Hugo darling, won't you?" she said.

"Thank you," said the girl faintly.

She did not call his mother "Your Indulgence," he was relieved to notice; she did not call her anything. In fact she had barely spoken since she entered his room, and Hugo watching her pour out his tea and feeling strangely awkward, at length managed to break the silence.

"I hope you won't mind my coming to read to me," he said.

"I am in need of work," said Mrs. Hallett briefly.

Her voice was charming, but Hugo thought: "Now isn't that like a girl? Doesn't answer my question but makes a statement."

"Lucky, really. What beastly luck," he ventured again.

"Not at all. Everybody," said Mrs. Hallett, looking significantly around the room, "can't have plenty of money."

"Well, it isn't my fault," exclaimed Hugo, indignantly, in answer to the glance. "I hate the room as much as you do."

"Hate it? Why it's beautiful," Mrs. Hallett's tone was outraged. "Think you are very lucky," she said with sudden bitterness.

"O, rather. My word I am." Hugo laughed and hoped she knew it was hollow laughter. This girl disliked him already, it was evident, and he felt childishly annoyed about it. "You'll simply hate reading to me. I can see that," he said aggressively.

"If I don't suit you, Mr. Donaldson, I had better go," she said in a low voice.

There was a shout of laughter, by no means hollow this time, from the bed.

"Don't be an ass," said Mr. Donaldson unexpectedly. "Look here, you are a funny girl. You can't have a row with a person you've only known two minutes. It's simply ridiculous."

The girl stood looking down at the tea table in a troubled way. Hugo smiled at her but could not catch her eye, so he said in a friendly voice: "I say, I know all about you."

"What?" exclaimed Mrs. Hallett, evidently startled.

"You're the lodger of the mother of the young man Tright's daughter's walking out with."

"What shall I be, I wonder?" pursued Hugo, watching her out of one eye. "I suppose I'll be the client of the lodger of the mother of the young man Tright's daughter's walking out with. Now you do one. We can go on for miles."

This time his effort was rewarded with a little wavering smile, which died, however, as she said in a troubled voice: "I'm afraid I shan't be cheerful enough for you."

"Cheerful?" cried Hugo. "My word, if you go on being cheerful with me, we shall have a flare up, I can tell you. You wouldn't believe how many cheerful people I have about me. It's awful. . . only don't tell them that because I wouldn't want to hurt their feelings. They think it's the proper way to treat a battered wreck and you can almost see 'em turning it on at the meter as they come in the door. If you'll come along and be thoroughly miserable you'll be doing me no end of a good turn."

"Besides," proceeded Hugo wickedly, "I want somebody to fight with and you are pretty good at that."

The smile disappeared.

"Yes, I can fight," said Mrs. Hallett in a level voice. "You haven't touched your tea, Mr. Donaldson, and if you don't have it at once, I shall go away until you have finished it."

"Where?" inquired the villain on the bed with eager interest.

"I suppose I could wait outside the door."

Very suspicious. Any one coming along would be sure you could be lurking there for no good purpose. They'd call the police and you'd be arrested for battery and arson and selling intoxicating liquors on unlicensed premises after hours.

Just as you were about to be sent at dawn the governor would come rushing out shouting, "Unhand that lady, you mugs. Don't you know she's the lodger of the mother of the young man Tright's daughter's walking out with." Exit Mrs. Hallett with holo, Police fall fainting in all directions.

"BUTTER GOT A DIME'S WORTH OF CANDY, BUT I WISH IT WAS OSWALD INSTEAD 'CAUSE I'M BIGGER THAN OSWALD!"

"I hope you won't mind my coming to read to me," he said.

"I am in need of work," said Mrs. Hallett briefly.

Her voice was charming, but Hugo thought: "Now isn't that like a girl? Doesn't answer my question but makes a statement."

"Lucky, really. What beastly luck," he ventured again.

"Not at all. Everybody," said Mrs. Hallett, looking significantly around the room, "can't have plenty of money."

"Well, it isn't my fault," exclaimed Hugo, indignantly, in answer to the glance. "I hate the room as much as you do."

"Hate it? Why it's beautiful," Mrs. Hallett's tone was outraged. "Think you are very lucky," she said with sudden bitterness.

"O, rather. My word I am." Hugo laughed and hoped she knew it was hollow laughter. This girl disliked him already, it was evident, and he felt childishly annoyed about it. "You'll simply hate reading to me. I can see that," he said aggressively.

"If I don't suit you, Mr. Donaldson, I had better go," she said in a low voice.

There was a shout of laughter, by no means hollow this time, from the bed.

"Don't be an ass," said Mr. Donaldson unexpectedly. "Look here, you are a funny girl. You can't have a row with a person you've only known two minutes. It's simply ridiculous."

The girl stood looking down at the tea table in a troubled way. Hugo smiled at her but could not catch her eye, so he said in a friendly voice: "I say, I know all about you."

"What?" exclaimed Mrs. Hallett, evidently startled.

"You're the lodger of the mother of the young man Tright's daughter's walking out with."

"What shall I be, I wonder?" pursued Hugo, watching her out of one eye. "I suppose I'll be the client of the lodger of the mother of the young man Tright's daughter's walking out with. Now you do one. We can go on for miles."

This time his effort was rewarded with a little wavering smile, which died, however, as she said in a troubled voice: "I'm afraid I shan't be cheerful enough for you."

"Cheerful?" cried Hugo. "My word, if you go on being cheerful with me, we shall have a flare up, I can tell you. You wouldn't believe how many cheerful people I have about me. It's awful. . . only don't tell them that because I wouldn't want to hurt their feelings. REPORTER CONFESSES GUILT IN BOND THEFT

New Orleans Newspaper Man Held for Los Angeles Police.

New Orleans, November 21.—(AP)—Mystery today enveloped a newspaper reporter arrested last night by detectives charged with the theft of $170,000 worth of liberty bonds from the First National bank of Los Angeles.

Sitting in his cell, dry-lipped and red-eyed, he astonished his cellmates by saying:

"I told my real name. I was killed. My name is not O'Hara, neither O'Neil. It is an honored name of Kentucky and I'd die before I revealed it."

For two years he had been known in New Orleans as Kenneth Terrence O'Hara and under that name had written brilliant stories for a local newspaper and verse published in magazines over the country. The police knew him as John B. O'Neil, absconding bank teller.

"I am the man they want," he said. "They can call me what they please."

The police circular says he was born in Louisville, Ky., June 15, 1891, but the man says he was born there June 15, 1892.

He has a military bearing, rides like a centaur, and some months ago had his photograph taken in the uniform of a major of infantry bearing several service bars. He speaks authoritatively of the service, indicates familiarity with New York, Boston, Los Angeles and San Francisco and Kentucky and knows intimate facts about prominent persons in these places. To his friends he frequently spoke of better days, but while here lived in monk-like frugality, was always hard up and was as silent as the sphinx on his past. No one knew how or when he came to New Orleans.

"I'm guilty of embezzlement, I suppose," he said. "But the sum mentioned astonishes me. The $151,000 of bonds returned to the treasury department by a 'W. H. Frost' is a mystery. I go back to 1922, but the real story will have to go untold because I am not the only one to be considered. If I did tell the story now, I'd be killed before I ever got into a court room."

So he sits in his cell while the police strive to unravel the threads of his mystery.

MUTINY REVEALED BY VESTRIS PROBE

Instances chains attached to the bundles which are supposed to free the boats when pulled down broke.

Faulty Mechanism.

Under further questioning he acknowledged that he knew of not a single instance in which the release mechanism did work.

When Tuttle was done with the witness, the officer assigned to him by Captain E. I. Jessup, U. S. N. retired, American special nautical advisor to the Mississippi river, was taken up by the British government.

"There has been testimony," Captain Jessup continued, "that some of the lifeboats had no officers in them. Why?"

"I suppose they didn't get in."

Authority Flouted.

"You were chief officer, were you not, in general command under the captain. Had you no authority over your own subordinates?"

"I saw one officer coming out on deck," Johnson replied, "and told him to go to his boat. He turned and walked away. What could I do?"

"Are you as a chief officer asking me a question like that?" rumbled the portly former naval officer.

Captain Jessup then drew attention to previous testimony of other witnesses that some of the lifeboats were left hanging in the davits with none of the crew making any attempt to launch them.

"Were they assigned to go to particular boats in time of disaster?" he asked.

"Yes," Johnson acknowledged, "but they weren't there."

"Weren't you chief officer in charge of the whole crew?"

Worst Side of Boat.

Captain Jessup referred to other testimony that women and children were put in lifeboats on the high side of the ship, boats that never were launched and that went down with the ship, loaded with passengers.

"Was not that side of the ship the most difficult to launch, lifeboats from?" the nautical expert asked, and the chief officer wrinkled his brow and clasped his hands tightly on his knees.

"Well, yes," he said, after several moments' silence. "It most certainly was."

"Why were most of the women and children on the Vestris put in these boats then?" Captain Jessup asked.

"Most of the passengers were gathered up there away from the water," Johnson offered in explanation.

Previously he gave much the same reason to United States Attorney Tuttle, the fact that one boat on the low side of the ship had been launched with only a handful of men in it, all members of the crew.

"Why were there so few people in that boat?" Tuttle asked before Captain Jessup took the witness.

"There were so few about at the time," Johnson said. "It was on the starboard side and almost everyone was up on the port side."

When Captain Jessup was through with the chief officer, having questioned him at length about leaking doors and ports on the Vestris and having asked him why the Vestris had reported "nothing to communicate" to its sister ship, the Voltaire, a few hours before it sank, a question Johnson could not answer, Tuttle continued his examination.

Johnson told Tuttle that he knew the situation of the Vestris was critical but that if he himself had been in command he would have delayed sending an S O S just as long as Captain Carey did.

"Why wouldn't you have sent it sooner?" Tuttle asked.

"Well, the gale was moderating all the time Monday."

"But the list of the ship, you have said, was steadily increasing, and water was coming in from an unknown source? Under these conditions you would not have sent out an S O S before 10 o'clock Monday morning? That's your position, is it?"

"I suppose it is."

"But you know now you would have been wrong, don't you?"

"Yes, I guess I would."

Tells of Caulking.

Gustave Wohl, the Vestris' carpenter, who said he had been the ship's carpenter for more than 30 years, followed the chief officer on the stand and testified that he personally, working on a staging let down over the side of the ship, supervised the caulking of the Vestris' coal ports and hull doors, with spun yarn and white lead before she sailed.

These openings all leaked according to previous testimony.

Wohl said the chief officer told him Sunday afternoon that a half-door on the port side of the Vestris was leaking, and that he fixed it. Later in the afternoon, he said, he went to fix the starboard half-door, but the caulking, leaking—but not so badly, he thought, as to let in enough water to cause the ship to list.

"The spun yarn and white lead washed out again," he said. "I caulked it up again."

"Did that stop the leak?"

"Yes, for a little while, but more water coming in washed the caulking out. I caulked it up again about 9 o'clock Sunday evening."

Look Tank Soundings.

Questioned by Captain Jessup, Wohl said he worked on that starboard half-door at intervals all the rest of Sunday night, until about 1 a. m., when he was called to repair several broken hull holes. He then started taking soundings in the ship's bilge tanks, he said, reporting to Captain Carey every half hour. His last soundings, at 5 a. m. Monday, he said, revealed that no bilge tank on the ship held more than two feet of water.

"Where do you think the water was coming into the ship?" Wohl asked.

"We couldn't find out," Wohl replied.

On his second trip to the witness stand, James Adams, the chief engineer, largely reiterated testimony he had given earlier in the hearing. He was recalled, like the chief officer, to give Captain Jessup and Captain McConeky, who were not present when he first testified, an opportunity to question him.

Development at Hand.

The greatest development of foreign trade in the history of the United States is at hand and more vitally affects the south than any other section of the country, General A. C. Dalton said here Wednesday.

Speaking before more than 200 business men and civic leaders at a luncheon at the Ansley hotel, the vice chairman of the shipping board and president of the emergency fleet corporation declared that Atlanta, as the south's chief commercial city, would gain from this foreign trade development the most prosperous era in its history.

"We have practically reached the limit of our domestic trade," General Dalton said. "Upon our foreign marketing now depends the prosperity of the nation. We are launching a great foreign trade movement just as the great south is emerging into its own as an industrial section and I have no doubt but that the greatest financial return will come to this section."

Industrial Development Remarkable.

General Dalton, a guest at the second annual southeastern foreign trade conference, which closed a two-day session Wednesday, pointed out that the industrial and commercial development of this area has been remarkable since the close of the world war, that since then industry has become a rival of agriculture in the section, that the south's mills and factories are turning out products of universal demand and that the entire world should and will be served with the south's products when the nation begins to reap a return on the world-wide foreign trade campaign being conducted by the commerce department and the shipping board.

"Our manufacturers and exporters are beginning to realize that the world is our market and the government is prepared to send our ships everywhere to greater advantage than to our other standard trade."

Maritime Leaders World Leaders.

In a brief resume of the history of foreign trade, General Dalton pointed out that all through the ages the leading maritime nation dominated the world.

"When Rome ruled the world it was because her ships were making every port," he said. "With Greece it was likewise. Now England has the firmest grip on foreign commerce and it is only because of this that Britain rivals the United States."

"We are a great nation but our shipping interests, governmental and private are not up to our other standards. We should have an American ship subsidy and we will have it as soon as our business leaders and the congress become convinced that it is in the foreign markets that our trade must expand."

To support his contention that the south should receive the greatest benefits from the nation's foreign trade expansion, General Dalton cited figures showing the increase in exports from every southern port since the war.

"Houston, because 10 years ago it had no port shows the greatest increase," he said, "but New Orleans, Jacksonville, Savannah and Charleston also are making rapid progress. Ten years ago the shipping from these ports was only a small percentage of the total of the entire nation, but today it is nearly half and within a few years I expect to see the gulf and lower Atlantic ports leading all of the rest for outstripping those on the Pacific or upper Atlantic."

Introducing General Dalton, Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the board of the Atlantic and Gulf National bank and the Trust Company of Georgia, lauded the brilliant military record of the chief speaker and outlined in detail the remarkable progress of the emergency fleet corporation under his direction.

Gen. Dalton's Work.

"The foreign trade of the United States has grown remarkably through the assistance of General Dalton," Mr. Maddox said. "He is combining his efforts at all times, boosting our merchant marine, but never forgetting that American trade is the chief support of our fleet."

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Maddox read a long telegram from General L. Harding, assistant secretary of the national foreign trade council, which was presented from attending the conference here by the president of the council.

"The south's remarkable showing in foreign trade is our brightest spot," the telegram said. "The upward trend of our country's foreign trade is not stopped yet, nor will it until every southern product has found a market in the four corners of the earth."

Work of Department.

A. Lane Crier, of the transportation division of the department of commerce, said that the department had been working on that starboard half-door at intervals all the rest of Sunday night, until about 1 a. m., when he was called to repair several broken hull holes. He then started taking soundings in the ship's bilge tanks, he said, reporting to Captain Carey every half hour. His last soundings, at 5 a. m. BY HORACE RENEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer.

A respite from arduous football training duties ended today for southern conference squads as light work was resumed in most camps with the drills to be in full swing again by today.

Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado took up work in preparation for the Thanksgiving day clash against the Plainsmen of Auburn; Alabama and Georgia began conditioning for their annual turkey day tilt at Birmingham; Virginia and North Carolina unwrapped for hard work in making ready for their annual battle at Charlottesville; Tulane and Louisiana State resumed work for their meeting at New Orleans; Tennessee's mighty Volunteers and Kentucky's Wildcats have their annual contest to look forward to the same day; Mississippi A. & M. and the University of Mississippi started work for the biggest prize of their schedules; while Florida looked ahead to Washington and Lee.

Many of these Thanksgiving headlines are games of historic setting in Dixie. Especially is this true of the Cavalier-Tarheel, Golden Tornado-Auburn, Sewanee-Vanderbilt, Ole Miss-Maroon and Tulane-Tiger combats, all of which date to the earliest days of football in the south.

As the teams prepared for these outstanding clashes, the Crimson Tide of Alabama probably had the greatest number of obstacles to overcome. Wallace Wade, boasting a potentially great eleven when the players are physically fit, is faced with an avalanche of injuries, many of them serious.

Suther, Pearce, Campbell, Holm, Clements and a number of others are on the hurt list, all considered doubtful starters against the Athens Bulldogs. The five named are of the first eleven.

Secret practice was on tap at some of the institutions. Ole Miss' squad worked behind closed gates at Oxford while the same program is underway at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, where the Gobblers are making preparations for their clash against Virginia Military Institute at Roanoke. This game, billed as the military classic of the south, always comes up to expectations as one of the outstanding games of the year in the Atlantic section.

While many of the teams had injuries to overcome before they could get full strength to the field, the ten days left was considered sufficient let-down to allow most of them to heal.

Southworth Selected To Manage Cardinals

Idol of St. Louis Fans Returns As Youngest Pilot in National League for 1929.

BY KENNETH H. CLARK, Associated Press Staff Writer.

St. Louis, November 21.—(AP)—Billy Southworth, one of the heroes of the world's champions Cardinals of 1926 and an idol of St. Louis, today was named to manage the Cardinals in 1929. Southworth will be the Cardinals' fifth manager in five years and the youngest manager and the only playing manager in the National League. He is 34 years old, Bucky Harris, Detroit, is two years Southworth's junior and the only other player-manager in the two major circuits.

Expects More Fight.
In naming Southworth, one of the most popular players who ever donned a Cardinal uniform, President Sam Breadon said he expected him to inject more fight and stricter discipline in the Cardinal team, which under management of William McKechnie won the league pennant this year but lost four straight to the Yankees in the world's series.

McKechnie will exchange places with Southworth, who managed Rochester, N. Y., a Cardinal farm, and led it to championship of the International League this year. Breadon praised McKechnie's ability and expressed pleasure he would remain in the Cardinal organization.

Southworth Accepts.
When Southworth arrived this morning from his home at Columbus, Ohio, Breadon congratulated him upon his landslide victory in a newspaper poll to unseat the honor of the Cardinals' manager.

"It's a great pleasure to return to St. Louis as leader of the great Cardinal team," he said. "It's pretty hard to leave a team that has won the pennant."

Down the Line

GIVING "THE GOOF."

South Bend, Ind., November 21.—So much misinformation has been circulated concerning Notre Dame that your correspondent feels inclined to devote one more column in the attempt to show that this institution primarily is a university and not a football recruiting station. There are no fraternities here and no hazing is permitted.

They have, however, substituted for the custom of hazing, which is known as giving somebody "the goof." This might be regarded as a sort of hazing, which is mental rather than physical and which is aimed to reduce any swelling of the head from which an undergraduate might be suffering temporarily. There are various ways of giving "the goof," in accordance with the size of the head swelling and the form it takes.

When Mr. Knute Rockne was an undergraduate with a room in the "Subway" of Sorin Hall, there came to Notre Dame a freshman who announced with becoming modesty that he was the champion marble shooter of DeKalb county, Illinois, when he was in the grammar school. He was encouraged to continue announcing his championship. Whenever an undergraduate shows symptoms which require "the goof" they encourage him to tell as loudly as possible how good he is.

Naturally, they arranged a marble shooting contest in the gymnasium for the champion of DeKalb county. Knute Rockne, then a sophomore, was picked as his opponent and they went to shoot marbles for the intramural championship. A trainer was assigned to the Illinois champion and he was made to go through long periods of road work. He wandered at this, but they told him that the sophomore Rockne always trained hard for marble shooting contests and that if he wanted to uphold the honor of the freshman class he would have to be in the best condition possible.

The contest was held in the gymnasium, where an enormous ring was chalked and where the audience was large. Mr. Rockne, the sophomore champion, shook hands with his opponent with true marble shooting courtesy, as he said, "I suppose that he will start with the Egyptian break. That is the custom at this university."

"Oh, yes, certainly, whatever the custom is," replied the champion of DeKalb, as he trifled. One of the sophomores proceeded to build a pyramid of billiard balls in the center of the ring, using some same as a toe. "But those are pretty big marbles," the freshman complained. "Of course," said Mr. Rockne, "but we never play with the little marbles at this place. Are you ready?"

Sophomore Rockne proceeded to kneel down and broke the Egyptian pyramid of "marbles." He began to dawn upon the freshman that he was being given "the goof." For the duration of his studies at Notre Dame he bore himself quite modestly.

Another came announcing that he was a great quarterback. This made him an immediate subject for "the goof."

"But can you call the signals clearly?" he was asked. "All our quarterbacks have had such bad enunciation that the only games we lost were on account of the quarterback not being able to give the signals clearly."

For three weeks they had this freshman calling signals across the campus while the coaches and the best looking student and the best dressed student. But college cut clothing is not for Notre Dame. They seem to pride themselves on the shabbiness of their attire, and if there is one native raccoon-skin overcoat in South Bend I have yet to see it.

Once there came to Notre Dame a student who ever since has been known as Apollo. He particularly prided himself on his manly figure, which soon became apparent to the gofers. First they sent him an offer from a clothing company giving him college cut garments without cost if he would permit to wear them on the campus. He accepted the offer and spread the news.

Shortly afterward he was asked to pose in the semi-nude for a photograph for "The Dome," the college annual, as a sample of the brand of manly beauty developed at Notre Dame. Of course he agreed, and they posed him standing in the snow outside Sorin Hall where the athletes, who love to call themselves the "rough-necks," reside.

While he was posing there one of the gofers with a full bucket of chilly water waited in an upper store. The man with the bucket did his stuff, but his aim was inaccurate and he missed the subject entirely. But this subject of the goof was no dandy that he went back to pose for a second time. At the next attempt the man with the bucket did not miss, and as today he is in an upper store to suspect that he was being given "the goof." He discarded the college cut clothing and finished in the corridor and sweater. He seemed to make up the conventional costume for a Notre Dame man.

They did not, one man into the lake the other day. But it was not this was justifiable ducking, for it was shown that this particular man had been on the Army. Normally, the lake is used only for swimming and fishing.

Notre Dame's "Prep School."
There is one legend to the effect that Mr. Rockne maintains in the vicinity of a prep school, conducted in connection with Notre Dame to keep up an ancient tradition, but the average age of the athletic student in this institution is nine years. They call them the "minims." They have a dormitory and a campus of their own and they seldom leave their bounds. The minims were loose in their gymnasium when I visited their sector of the University of Notre Dame de Lac (to give its full name), under the golden dome.

These are mostly the children of parents whose vacation are such that they must park their cars somewhere. It is a noisy place, the minims' gymnasium. They were riotous at play when we came to look on. They tolerated us. There is no self-consciousness about a member of the minims. He looks the whole world in the face through questioning eyes.

But as we were leaving a minims said: "Wonder if we have to spend Thanksgiving in this place, too."

This evidently was a newcomer to the minims, who had some fond memories of turkey and things somewhere else.

Football Time Limited.
Since this visit I will let nobody get away with the impression that there is any of what the boys call "overemphasis of football" at Notre Dame. Standing at the entrance of Sorin Hall Friday, before the game with Carnegie Tech, I saw Collins, Cheever and Moynihan hurry to their classes. There was a half-hour blackboard talk in the lunch hour, the 30 min' as devoted to it were filled with the lunch period by the members of the football team.

Two 'Contests' Remain Before Record Is Safe

Tiger Plays Will Be Thrown Varsity; Spears Will Be on Sidelines.

BY HERB CLARK.

Coch Alexander did down on his whistle Wednesday afternoon and blew himself a long blast which had the effect of calling the scattered elements of Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado back to their places in the gale which has wreaked so much havoc among the football teams of the country this year.

The Techsters, having taken a rest during the days elapsing between the battle with the Crimson Tide from Tusculooa and Wednesday got down to work in preparation for the coming Thanksgiving day set in which the Auburn Tigers will make their annual appearance at the Flats.

Punts Are Practiced.
Wednesday's workout was the usual postgame session. Punts and their covering occupied the attention of the Jackets for the first part of the practice, and then the kicking under the kicks to surround the receiver at the end of the arch.

The center of the line, Bill Fincher, a tackle, and a second-year player during this booting, and had their hands full with the tackling dummies. The bags took plenty of punishment in the kicking drill.

These last minutes were devoted to a polishing drill on the running of the Jacket plays. Three squads were kept busy running signals up and down the field.

Men available for play at Grant field in the Auburn game will be the standbys again, unless the scrimmages to come before turkey day take a toll.

Spears Is Out.
Frank Spears, Tech's "Man Mountain," a tackle, and a last year who has been conceded a good chance at recognition on at least one of the annual mythical elevens, is definitely out of the game. He is probably unable to see service against Georgia's Bulldogs. One of his ribs was cracked before the Notre Dame fracas, and was re-injured by the Irish in the game.

Gray Devils Busy.
Firpo Martin's staff also spent a busy afternoon. Both Auburn and Georgia plays have been given them, and the staff has been split, with one section detailed to each set of formations. The Tiger maneuvers are of course receiving more concentrated attention at present.

They have some of the trickiest pass plays yet seen on Grant field, and the Georgia staff is working hard to stop them. Liberty play, may not be used in the game, they will remain a threat. One of the best involves a short forward pass, followed by a handoff to the backfield, followed by an off-tackle dash. This play was used to good advantage against Tufts in the game.

Just to keep those interested in the grid game from plucking at the point, thoroughly satisfied, Coach Clay put his freshman squad through a practice on the upper field. The Junior Jackets are looking for a game with Florida's frosh aggregation, which will be played Saturday afternoon on the varsity lot. Wednesday's game included a punting session, followed by a long signal drill.

Both the Jackets and their freshmen contemporaries will see scrimmages this afternoon. The latter, if correct, and work will be real and earnest for some time to come.

Gar Wood Seeks Records in Air
Miami, Fla., November 21.—Gar Wood, dean of motorboat racers, is seeking new speed laurels—this time in the air.

Announcement was made by the Miami Airport association today that Wood had issued a challenge to any pilot with an airplane not exceeding more than 50 horsepower his cabin monoplane of 425 horsepower to race him as a feature of the all-American air meet early in January.

The speed boat king purchased an airplane here last winter and is now proficient in its handling.

New Golf Club To Sign Diegel
San Diego, Cal., November 21.—(AP)—Announcement was made here that Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion, would be signed today as "pro" for the new $250,000 Agua Caliente golf course, near Tijuana, Mexico. James N. Crofton, of the Agua Caliente company, reported Diegel had accepted the offer, which is believed carries a salary of $15,000 or $20,000 a year.

Diegel was expected to arrive here today. A $25,000 tournament has been planned for Agua Caliente for December, 1929, or January, 1930.

Mitchell Will Fight Hoffman in Gotham
New York, November 21.—(AP)—Andy Mitchell, Long Beach, Calif., heavyweight, who was refused the permission of the New York State Athletic commission to fight Young Striling, will make his first appearance in New York in the six-round final bout at St. Nicholas arena Monday night. He will meet early in January.

Games Wanted.
Basketball teams of Peachtree Christian church are seeking games for both the boys' and girls' clubs either in single or double games, with teams in and near Atlanta. Games can be arranged by writing the manager, C. A. Henson, care tax assessor's office, City Hall.

'Let Carnegie Tech Worry,' Is Advice of N. Y. U. Coach

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY.

New York, November 21.—(United Press)—"Carnegie Tech has got to beat us!"

That's the psychology Chick Meehan is using in preparing the New York University eleven for Saturday's game with the conquerors of Notre Dame.

"We're not going to play a defensive game—not by a long shot," Meehan said, "but the burden of proof is on Carnegie Tech, not New York university."

Meehan isn't worrying about the outcome of the game and his players have assumed his attitude of "Just another game—all to gain, nothing to lose—let Carnegie Tech worry; we're doing it if they do."

"If my players can go into the game without any mental strain," Meehan said, "I have no fear over the outcome. Carnegie Tech has a lot of things to worry about—its undefeated record, its last game and etc. Tech's the favorites, we're the underdogs. They've got to lick us and it will be a great football game while they're doing it."

Despite the high scores rolled up by New York university in seven of its eight games, the Violets' defense record, its last game and etc. Tech's the favorites, we're the underdogs. They've got to lick us and it will be a great football game while they're doing it."

Georgetown handed N. Y. U. its only defeat on a muddy field when a player picked up a fumble and ran for a touchdown. The score was 7 to 2. Colgate scored a touchdown late in the game after N. Y. U. had run up a high score and then withdrew its regulars. Missouri scored on a forward pass.

N. Y. U.'s plan of battle revolves around two giant tackles, a Lasseman and Calhoun Grant, and a 190-pound halfback who has power to waste and speed to burn, Kenneth Strong.

Lasseman, who weighs 210, and Grant, who weighs 209, will be counted on to stop Harold Harpster, Johnny Karcis and Letzelter. Letzelter, before Meehan is particular as to that detail. Strong will be hurled at the "red brick wall" and dispatched around the flank.

Strong has never been stopped this season and has gained 1,639 yards. Even in the Georgetown game, Strong was wild on a muddy field and several times carried the ball within striking distance of the last chalk mark. Strong has the strength of a bull and the speed of a cat.

Scoring 19 touchdowns and kicking 25 goals after touchdown, Strong has accounted for 159 of the 270 points made by the N. Y. U. eleven this season. He leads the country in individual scoring.

What Strong is to the Violets' offense, Lasseman and Grant are to the team's defense. No team has made any progress against either of the pair.

Lasseman is the greatest tackle I ever coached or saw on a football field," Meehan said. "And Grant is not far behind. Lasseman has no equal at breaking through the line and stopping the other team's plays before they get started. Watch him against Carnegie Tech."

On comparative scores against Georgetown, Carnegie Tech has the edge. The Tartans beat Georgetown, 13 to 0, after the latter had beat N. Y. U. 7 to 2.

"My team is 100 per cent better than it was in the Georgetown game," Meehan said. "The game with Georgetown is no indication of our strength. We had the same huddle in that game that Carnegie Tech will have in this one—an undefeated record."

GEORGIA HOPING TO UPSET DOPE.
Athens, Ga., November 21.—(Special)—Coach Harry Meehan today signaled laying plans by which he hopes to upset a great deal of dope in the last two games of the season. He sent his Georgia Bulldogs through a hard scrimmage against Gene Smith's freshman eleven, although all first string men did not participate in the workout.

Alabama plays were working pretty successfully against the varsity. Powerful freshman backs catapulted and spun through the line after time and the rats threw several forward passes that meant disaster to the varsity players.

Several varsity players, however, were outstanding in their play against the frosh, particularly Henry Palmer and Gene Haley at guard, and Leroy Lanford at the pivot position. The varsity was on the defense during the entire workout. As Meehan sees it, the defense needs more training than the offense, which has not yet failed to cross the enemy goal line at least once each game, despite the fact that the Georgians have lost three frosh.

Another stiff scrimmage is slated for the Bulldogs Thursday and they will more than get a lighter assignment Friday when the freshmen will be resting up for their game with the Alabama Rats Saturday.

Losing Theodore Frieble was a blow to the Bulldogs' chances, considerably weakening the reserve strength, if not directly alleviating the first string power. Frieble is out for the season, after dropping off 20 pounds in weight since September.

EASTERN TEAMS START TAPERING.
New York, November 21.—(AP)—Most of the college football teams that play this Saturday wound up their heavy work today and started tapering off. Harvard still kept a veil of secrecy over its dummy scrimmage against the scrubs who used Yale players. However, Coach Horwen indicated that the drills for the next two days would be no more than light exercises to keep the players on edge.

The 25th has a long passing, kicking and signal drill as their last workout.

Navy and Princeton both worked at stopping each other's play in dummy scrimmages.

A NEW ONE
Chicago, November 21.—(AP)—Judge Walter P. Steffen, the commanding coach of Carnegie Tech, explained today why the Carnegie Scotchman defeated Notre Dame last Saturday, and in so doing he coined a new Scotch joke.

"That Scotch line," said the judge, "just wouldn't give."

For 15 years Judge Steffen has been re-sending in Pittsburgh coaching the Carnegie football teams.

Jack Dempsey Warns He May Battle Again

Plans One More Conference With Tex After Christmas To See If He Will.

Hollywood, Calif., November 21.—(United Press).—A conference with Tex Rickard in Miami, Fla., shortly after Christmas, will determine when, if at all, Jack Dempsey is to fight again, the former champion said today upon his return from New York.

"You shouldn't be surprised if I go back for one more battle," was the nearest Dempsey came to a definite statement about his plans.

Atlantan Loses In Golf Tourney

Pinehurst, N. C., November 21.—(Special).—C. A. Chandler, Atlanta golfer, was beaten in the first round of match play in the annual Carolina golf tournament here today. Playing in the second division, Chandler was defeated by R. E. Rubicum, of Ardley, N. Y., by 6 and 4.

Reports by scouts of Dartmouth's sudden reversal of form have caused Coach Dick Hanley to work his Northwestern team harder than ever. Passes and blocking received major attention at the Wildcat camp.

With Barnett, alternate fullback and quarter, and Thibodeau and Lott, regular starting halfbacks on the injured list, Faulkner returned to the quarterback post in yesterday's practice, while Eberhardt and Jones ran the westerners' formations in a dummy scrimmage with the regulars.

What Is Happening In Grid Camps
* * * * *

LEXINGTON, VA., November 21.—(AP)—Washington and Lee's football warriors are this week hammering away on a slightly changed and somewhat varied plan of attack expected to be used against Maryland next Saturday.

With Barnett, alternate fullback and quarter, and Thibodeau and Lott, regular starting halfbacks on the injured list, Faulkner returned to the quarterback post in yesterday's practice, while Eberhardt and Jones ran the westerners' formations in a dummy scrimmage with the regulars.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., November 21.—(AP)—Conservation is still the watchword in the football camp of the Cavaliers of the University of Virginia as the squad prepares for its ancient foe, North Carolina, here on Thanksgiving day.

Light drills and workouts are being used as various members of the squad who have been in the casualty ranks, nurse their injuries in hope and expectation of getting a trial against North Carolina. It now appears that several letter men who have been forced out of recent games may be in condition for the Tarheels.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., November 21.—(AP)—A cooler wave that swept down into Kean Memorial stadium last night and snap to the Tarheel football squad as it began its campaign of preparation for the annual Thanksgiving day battle with the Virginia Cavaliers.

The Carolina coaches topped the vacation with a light conditioning workout this afternoon and the pep in signal drills indicated that the Tarheels have profited by their rest.

The entire squad was in uniform with the exception of Julian Fehner, an infected foot, but will be in shape for the 100-yard route.

Jockey Breaks Leg at Lexington

Florida Rolls Up Huge Score On Opposition

Gators Tally Touchdown for Each of 25 Points Made by Foes This Year.

BY EARLE WATSON.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

For each one of the 25 points total scored by opposing football teams on the University of Florida in the Southern Conference this year, the Gainesville dreadnaughts have received a touchdown.

Using the strong Clemson Tigers last week as a stepping stone, the Alligators took the chief team scoring position in the south with 254 points. The four touchdowns netted against Clemson brought their total of six markers within the conference to an even quarter century. It was also their fortieth touchdown of the year in all games. Alabama, scoring two touchdowns against Georgia Tech, maintained a place among the leaders.

Getting a rap at gallant but hapless Sewanee, the Tulane Greenies flooded Tennessee's vigorous Vols out of third position in the intra-conference register and bobbed up on the outskirts of the fight for point honors in all games played, with 215.

While Tennessee only registered one touchdown Saturday, the Vols carried off the honor of being the second team able to hold Vanderbilt scoreless in three years, Georgia Tech being the other to turn the trick. The Tornado and Commodores played a scoreless tie last year.

LAWSON SIGNS TO FIGHT HERE DECEMBER 11

Signing of Bob Lawson, giant Alabama negro, who has scored a flock of victories in the east, as opponent for Al Walker in the main event of the fight here December 11 was announced Wednesday by Promoter S. C. Roby. The two negro heavies will feature what Promoter Roby declares will be both a snappy and lengthy card.

Lawson, who fought for quite a time under the management of the late Walk Miller, has met practically all of the outstanding heavyweights in the country and with a few isolated exceptions has emerged triumphant.

One of the outstanding feats in his record is a knockout victory over Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world. Lawson kayaked Johnson in the fourth round of the fight at Mexico City some time ago.

Roby has declared that his exceptionally low prices will be in order again December 11 and that he expects to have an even bigger crowd and better show than he did on the occasion of his promoting debut here last month.

Gar Wood Seeks Airplane Contest

Miami, Fla., November 21.—(AP)—Gar Wood, internationally known speed boat builder and racer, who has captured many records with his "Miss America" series of speed boats, has issued a challenge here for an air race.

To "Yellow Yachtman," of the air, he has announced a 50-mile race, open to all comers, whom he will compete against in his faithful cabin monoplane, which he has learned to fly himself, and which is fitted with dual control. The plane is powered with a 425-horsepower motor.

Contestants must have planes of similar carrying capacity and fitted with pontoons, and with motors not exceeding 475-horsepower.

The race is to be a feature of the all-American air meet and exposition in Miami January 7, 8, and 9.

Cherokee Court Games Set Today

The third series of games in the girls' Cherokee basketball league will be played at the Presbyterian court Thursday night with Central Presbyterian and Peachtree Christian start the evening entertainment at 7 o'clock.

College Park Methodist meet Patillo Memorial, champions of last season, in what promise to be the feature game of the league at 8:40 with the final game of the league series starting at 8 p. m.

Western Heights Baptist, though drawing a bye, refuses to remain idle and will play one of the city league clubs and some comparison of the two leagues may be taken from this game.

The regular weekly meeting of the association will be held prior to the opening game.

Dates Are Set.

Chicago, November 21.—(AP)—The senior national swimming championship for women, awarded to Chicago by the National Amateur Athletic Union, will be held in February in the Lake Shore Athletic club pool.

The SPORTLIGHT

Line Battles.

There will be as many strong lines at work Saturday as any season has known since guards and tackles were invented. There are not as many outstanding stars, perhaps, but there is a world of rugged line power scattered all over the land. The Notre Dame line with Leppig, Miller, Moynihan and others is one of the best. Stanford has a big, powerful array from tackle to tackle. Georgia Tech and Pennsylvania, who rest this Saturday, have strong forward walls. The Tech line is big enough, fast and aggressive. Princeton and the Navy will have two strong lines, where Howe, of Princeton, and Burke, of the Navy, are among the leaders. California has a strong line to throw at Stanford. One of the best line battles will come between New York university and Carnegie Tech, where each camp has its full share of defensive strength. The Army line has never been quite the same since Sprague, the big captain, was hurt in the Harvard game. But it still has good men in Hammack, Hall and Perry, to mention only three. A good line—but not a great one.

In the list of strong tackles there are: Pomeroy, of Michigan; Gette, of Pitt; Smith and Utz, of Penn; Grant and Lassman, of N. Y. U.; Mooney, of Georgetown—and this only starts the parade.

Defensive Backs.

Four of the best defensive backs in football this season have been Scull, of Pennsylvania; Cornsawt, of Brown; Lumpkin, of Georgia Tech, and Howen, of Nebraska.

Cornsawt, on at least two occasions, has been more than half a team in defensive play. The Brown star is quick to diagnose a play, a quick starter and a hard, smashing tackler. He has had no superiors in defensive line. Lumpkin, of Georgia Tech, weighing about 200, is another who has like a bolt of lightning. Members of the Army-Notre Dame game, say that Scull is one of the greatest defensive backs the Crimson has ever been against. Outside of this, Scull has been a star in many games, drop-kick—and what do you want? So can Brazil, of Detroit.

It is always difficult to pick out Notre Dame's stars, for one Rockne gets his team geared up you overlook the individual in the performance of a smooth, well-oiled organization. After the Army-Notre Dame game, seasoned observers, naming one at a time, picked Chevignon, Nemic, Collins, Miller, Liping and Moynihan as the outstanding contributions. Few agreed on any one man. That is a team.

News from the Scouts.

Dear Sir: Believe me the best guards in the west are Gibson, of Minnesota, and Westra, of Iowa. The Hawkeye is a great man in leading interference and a deadly tackler. He's a giant of a fellow and little gets past him. Iowa has great interference for its big backs and he's the spear head.

SUNSET SLIM.

Dear Sir: "Point a Minute" Nelson is what they are calling Irvine Nelson, the young Iowa substitute. Like Piffman, of Harvard, some years ago, he only enters the game in a discussion of football. He is a touchdown, and he seldom fails. He's gone to the post four times this season and added a point each time. Nelson is a drop kicker, one of the few in the west, and deadly with his broad toe.

Dear Sir: Sooner or later all colleges must adopt a strict rule against transfer athletes, such as is in vogue at Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Pittsburgh. There's entirely too much shifting among our college athletes. McLean, of Iowa, played enough at Haskell to satisfy most boys, but he still has two more years at Iowa. In many sections transfer athletes are permitted to play out their allotted time if scholastically eligible and after a year's residence. It's not exactly ethical, any way you take it.

WAYFARER.

Sharkey and Stribling.

There is a general belief among a number of insiders that the final showdown will come between Jack Sharkey and Stribling, when the next series of eliminations is over. Maybe it won't—but that is about as good a guess as any.

Sharkey still has a long way to go before he wipes out his showing against Heenev and Risko. Stribling has more than one big eastern battle to overcome before he can be stamped among the best of the survivors. But these two have more speed, more boxing skill and more experience than most of those now left.

Whether the survivor will find Dempsey back in another argument. And not even Dempsey knows how much he will have left after nearly 20 years of fighting.

Today's Golf Lesson.

Jerry Travers, now a leading cotton broker, was talking about putting a few nights back. His superior at that art has never yet come along. "The first factor," remarked Travers, "is to take a stance that means ease and comfort and lack of tension. I have always believed this was easier to get with the heels fairly close together, without too much bending over. The more one's muscles are tight, the greater his tension and his tendency to hurry the putting blade or stab at the ball. Putting is almost entirely a matter of smoothness and decision. Smoothness is hard to get with a tight grip or with legs and body under tension. A flock of golfers look about as comfortable when they take a putting stance as if they were sitting in an electric chair."

Archie Compston Succeeds Havers

London, November 21.—(AP)—Archie Compston, British golfer who has just returned from a tour of the United States, was appointed professional at the Coombe Hill Golf club today. He succeeds Arthur Havers, former British open champion, who is playing exhibition matches in South America.

Coombe Hill is a fashionable club on the outskirts of London. The club's pro for many years was the veteran Sam Herd.

Compston's decision to remain at home instead of emigrating to the United States pleases the British golfing world, for he will be available for the British Ryder cup team next year.

A match between Compston and Farrell, the American open champion, or Leo Diegel, the professional champion of the United States, will likely start the next international team contest.

Adolfo Is Back.

Havana, November 21.—(AP)—Back from Cienfuegos, where he was fined $200 for "disorderly conduct and public scandal," Adolfo Lopez, star pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, says that if he "never sees the town again it will be too soon."

The charges were made as an outgrowth of a disturbance at a Cienfuegos ball field from which Lopez was forcibly removed. He maintains that his actions at the park did not justify the severe fine.

Tech, Petrels Will Attend Negro Battle

Atlanta and Clark Squads Work Hard for Annual Tilt Next Saturday.

With only two days left Coach Taylor of Clark university, held a lengthy workout Wednesday afternoon in final preparation for the game with the "Crimson Hurricane" of Atlanta university Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock on Spiller's field.

The football squads of Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe university will attend the championship of Atlanta university Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock on Spiller's field.

A light scrimmage saw the reserves of Atlanta University play and formations. The scrubs were using the famous delayed buck and were running wild over the variety. On several occasions a scrub back got through for long gains. This play almost carried the Hurricane outfit to the championship.

Chambers, fast-running back of the Panthers, made several sensational runs around left end. This led to most of the ground gaining for the varsity on sweeping runs.

Haines Outstanding.

Haines, the outstanding line player in the line, Duke Williams, playing his last year, clipped off nice gains over tackle and in a broken field run he eluded the entire reserve squad for a touchdown.

This scrimmage was not planned by Chief Aiken, who had previously stated that he would not do any hard work during the week, but some weak spots in the line had to be tested before the very moment that the varsity on sweeping runs.

Under a new system several quick and baffling heaves were knocked over the field and some nice work down by the secondary defense. Williams, triple-threat halfback, was all in batting down passes. He was greatly aided by Stanley, quarterback of the Atlanta team.

Smith in Rare Form.

Smith, who has been holding down the left end position in rare style showed splendid form in breaking up sweeping drives. This style of play was coached by Stanley, who led the squad to the long end dashes of Clark.

McPherson was booting the oval for an average of 50 yards more all the afternoon. He was getting his punts off fast and snappy.

Coach Aiken was well pleased with Wednesday's practice. He was optimistic about the outcome of Saturday's battle.

More than 18,000 are expected to witness the classic, as no white team is playing on the day of the colored game. More than 4,000 tickets have been sold for the game, and the cup half of the grandstand for all colored games at the park. Provisions are underway to seat 20,000 fans.

STRANGE FOES ON SCHEDULE OF VANDERBILT

Nashville, Tenn., November 21.—(AP)—Vanderbilt will meet strange foes on the gridiron next year as well as renew acquaintances with opponents of other years. The Vanderbilt-Texas game is missing from the 1929 schedule, but the team will face an announced by Vanderbilt athletic officials.

Only three 1928 rivals—Georgia Tech, Tennessee and Sewanee—are on next year's schedule, which follows:

October 5—Ouachita (Arkadelphia, Ark.) at Nashville, (probable).

Thanksgiving day—Sewanee at Nashville.

All in Readiness For Friday Bout

Everything is in readiness and Billy Hooper, colored fight promoter, is sitting back awaiting the opening going which starts his show off Friday night at the Paramount theater on Auburn avenue.

Billy declared when he announced his card that part of the proceeds from this show would go to the colored orphan started Billy on his way in the fight game. Davis fought around Atlanta some 15 or 20 years ago, losing his eyesight, and Billy decided to help him out.

Then once and for all the question of who has the right to wear the crown of colored featherweight champion of the south will be settled, when Richard Moore, of Houston, Texas, and present titleholder, meets Cowboy Kid, of Atlanta, and former champion. These two battles have faced each other twice. Moore lost the first seven last fall and came back to down Cowboy about four months ago.

Moore, who is a student at Atlanta university, has only lost one fight and that the one to Cowboy in two years. As his other bouts, Billy has booked Charlie Booker, who downed Tiger Payne last week, against Speedy Freeman, who holds a one-round knockout over Booker. Kid Bantam will mix with Kid Moon and Lightning Howard battles Jack Hunter. A battle royal will start the show at 8:30, and a special section has been reserved for white fans.

New Bowling Score.

St. Louis, November 21.—(AP)—A new all-time bowling score for middle-western competition has been made by the Roberts Undertaking team of St. Louis.

The five-man team topped 3,173 pins in the middle-west tournament last night, thus beating the previous record score, 3,087, made by the H. W. Jordan team of St. Paul two years ago.

Oglethorpe's Riders Play Local Teams

Game Today and Two Slated Sunday Will Mark Close of Present Season for Mallet Stars.

BY BEN COTHRAN.

Polo is preparing to end its 1929 season in Atlanta in one of the most whirlwind finishes. The beginning of the end is set for this afternoon at 2 o'clock when two teams from Fort Oglethorpe, representing the sixth cavalry play the Horse Guards and Fort McPherson. Sunday afternoon will see the end when two teams play the two local teams again.

After that saddles will be soaped, sticks put away and there'll be no more until next spring. Polo ponies will have nothing more exciting than perhaps the transporting over hill and dale of some person seeking exercise. The months of December, January and February bring rain in plentiful lots which makes grass slippery. A pony has a hard enough time keeping his feet on a dry field without adding the danger of regular slippage.

It is well that the last games of the year should afford polo of the fast type; of the sort that was had last Saturday afternoon when the combined talent of the Horse Guard and McPherson squads downed Fort Myer. That game was exciting from regular slippage and the fact that it was a scramble for the ball on the first throw-in.

It is quite probable that the games this week will be just as fast and well played as Sunday's. True enough, the local side will not be able to draw upon their combined resources, but the visiting aggregations have the goal as high a goal rating as Fort Myer.

Freebooters.

These cavalrymen from Oglethorpe, nevertheless, are hard-riding persons and expert horsemen, for horsemanship is their chosen profession. One team coming here is the Oglethorpe varsity or regular squad, and the other, the second team, is known as the Freebooters.

The first game this afternoon, at 2 o'clock, sends the Freebooters in against the Horse Guard in a six-chukker affair. Immediately following McPherson takes on the Oglethorpe regulars.

Sunday afternoon the program will be reversed. McPherson will play the Freebooters in the first affair, starting at 2 o'clock, and then the Horse Guard and regulars mix in the second of the games will be of six chukkers.

Oglethorpe's ponies arrive Tuesday and the players got in Wednesday, going through a practice session Wednesday afternoon.

Oglethorpe, being a cavalry outfit, naturally can command a better issue of horses than McPherson, an infantry organization, while the Horse Guard, branch of the National Guard, must depend on what it can get. The two local teams, in these games, will be at the disadvantage of having no poorer mounts. They have been up against this before, however, and have always made the games interesting. Today will be no exception.

Both the Oglethorpe teams carry a handicap of four while the two Atlanta teams have a handicap of three. Thus it is possible that the visitors will give their opponents one goal in each game.

Oglethorpe's Stars.

Playing for the Oglethorpe regulars will be Lieutenant R. I. Hodas at No. 1; Captain E. N. Chaves, No. 2; Lieutenant J. L. Ryan, No. 3; Lieutenant R. E. Ireland, back. Captain Cheeves and Lieutenant Ireland are both two-goal men, which gives the team its four goal handicap. They will face the regular McPherson lineup of Major Gus Tolson, No. 1; Major Gus Frank, No. 2; Lieutenant C. H. Read, No. 3; Captain A. G. Wing, back.

Playing the Horse Guards will be a team with Lieutenant C. H. Read, No. 1; Captain W. V. D. Ochs, No. 2; Lieutenant F. del. Comfort, No. 3; Lieutenant A. W. Johnson, back. Captain Ochs, who will captain this team, has a two-goal rating while Lieutenants Comfort and Johnson have one goal apiece. The Horse Guard lineup will consist of Ray Love, No. 1; Laurence Gay, No. 2; D. D. Christian, No. 3; Wesley Moran, back.

Last Sunday a very large crowd turned out for the game. The contests this week should draw a large number. The games will be fast and interesting, as they are always.

Bears Will Play At Penn in '29

Philadelphia, November 21.—(AP)—The Golden Bears, of California, will come to Philadelphia next season for the first time to play the University of Pennsylvania at football October 19. They have beaten Penn in post-season games on the Pacific coast.

Harvard and Chicago are missing from the 1929 schedule, announced today, the two-year contract with Harvard being concluded this season. For 1930 Pennsylvania is negotiating for games with Notre Dame and Wisconsin.

Final Workouts Set For Boys', Tech Highs

Championship of City Will Be Decided When Two Schools Meet Here Friday.

BY CHICK HARRIS.

The Tech High Smithies will go through a final workout today for the Boys' High game Friday. This encounter not only will decide the prep championship of the city, but will have a big bearing on the southern championship.

Both clubs are working hard for the game and according to the statements of the two coaches the tussle will be hard-fought and the fans are in for a rare treat Friday.

The two clubs are in rare form and are waiting for the referee's whistle. The boys of Tech High, however, were defeated by Richmond academy.

In Elliott, and McCallie, Coach Doyal of the Purple camp has two players who will bear watching in the backfield, while Miller and Branch will carry most of the burden of the line on the side of the Purple. Coach Gabe will be depending on Hammond, Mott and Hutt to throw at the Purple, and Henderson, Captain Doyal, and Ira Vess on the line to stop anything that Coach Doyal has to try.

This game between the two schools has been an annual affair for years, and it always has been a hard tussle as neither team will admit defeat until the final whistle blows.

Nurmi Delays Sailing for U. S.

Helsingfors, Finland, November 21.—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi, who was scheduled to sail for the United States a week ago yesterday, is still here. He said today he would not leave until early in December.

The great Finnish runner added that he would participate in amateur races in America and had not yet decided finally whether to become a professional.

University of Florida, November 21.—(Special).—Nash Higgins, Florida university football scout, has seen 15 southern teams, including Notre Dame, play this season. When asked to pick an all-star team, Higgins placed representatives of seven conference teams on his first eleven, giving the major honors however to Florida and Georgia Tech, picking three from each.

Here is Higgins' all-star conference team: Crabtree (Florida) qb.; Mizell, (Ga. Tech) and Banker (Tulane) halfbacks; Lumpkin (Ga. Tech) fullback; Vansickel (Florida) te.; Maree (Ga. Tech) te.; Steele (Florida) te.; Presley (Clemson) te.; Vaughn (N. C. State) rg.; Lautzenhiser (Georgia) rg.; Abernathy (Vanderbilt) re.

The second team follows: Witt (Tennessee) qb.; Armistead (Vanderbilt); Bethen (Florida); McEver (Tennessee); Thompson (Ga. Tech) halfbacks; White (Washington and Lee) te.; Hug (Tennessee) te.; Thayer (Tennessee) te.; Dreonan (Ga. Tech) te.; Pund (Ga. Tech) te.; Hall (Tulane) rg.; Spear (Ga. Tech) rg.; Stanley (Florida) re.

The white citizens, Bishop Fountain responded. Dr. J. E. Brown, presiding elder American district; M. W. Marmon, presiding elder East district; Dr. T. J. Jackson, presiding elder Orlando, Fla., registered among those attending the conference today. Dr. E. J. Jackson, of Florida, preaches to the conference on Wednesday night.

King George III.

London, November 21.—(AP)—King George was ill today. Physicians said that he was suffering from a cold and slight fever.

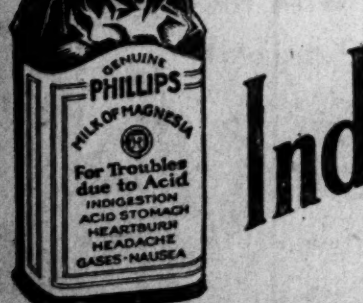

To Break Up a HEAD COLD Quickly...

At the first symptom of cold or flu, start taking STANKBACK HEADACHE POWDERS. Within a few hours you'll find congestion relieved, your head cleared, and the cold completely checked.

STANKBACK is easy to take, leaves no bad after-effect and, because it is in powder form, acts almost instantly on the system.

Keep a supply of STANKBACK on hand at all times. It is a superior pain-relieving agent, not only for headache but for neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica and other nerve pains. Your druggist recommends it!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help in Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One teaspoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—(adv.)

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Unheralded and almost unexpected, a group of the most important figures in the motion picture and theatrical business in America, headed by Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Incorporated, rolled into Atlanta Wednesday night, and paid a 20-minute visit here before re-embarcating on the Crescent Limited, bound for California. The distinguished visitors were greeted at the station by prominent members of the theatrical field in Atlanta and by a special committee composed of official representatives of the city of Atlanta and the state of Georgia as well as the state of the business interests of the city.

Mr. Schenck succeeded the late Marcus Loew as president of the vast Loew enterprise, which include theaters in most of the important cities of the United States and Europe and which control the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and other big amusement investments. In the party with Mr. Schenck were Adolph Zukor, president of the Paramount and Famous Players-Lasky organization, who is himself one of the biggest figures in the amusement world; Harold Franklin, president of West Coast theaters and high official of the William Fox organization; and E. J. Manix, president of the Atlanta-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company.

Committee Greets Visitors.

The local committee, which greeted the visitors, was headed by Mayor pro tem Claude Ashley, representing the city, and Hal M. Stanley, commissioner of commerce and labor, and Judge Max D. Land, member of the state industrial commission, representing the state of Georgia; City Comptroller B. Graham West, Dr. L. C. Roughtin, Lionel H. Keene, general manager of Loew's southern and southwestern circuits; Thomas H. James, manager of Loew's Capitol theater and director of Loew activities in Atlanta, Charles Kessnich, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization, and Willard Patterson, southern manager of Public theaters, and other theatrical managers and representatives of newspapers.

It is certain that the "talking pictures" have come to stay, according to Mr. Schenck, who predicted great advancement on the quality of these pictures in the near future.

"It is our purpose to continue to produce both silent pictures and talking pictures," he said. "We have found that there are many types of pictures which lend themselves readily to the use of dialogue as well as other sound features but we also have learned that there are many classes of pictures which are best without any sound effects save the usual musical score."

Many Improvements Coming.

There will be vast improvement made in the talking pictures just as vast improvements were made in the straight motion pictures, in the opinion of Mr. Schenck.

"In the silent pictures the public did not know of the improvement until it was made but there is a different situation in talking pictures," Mr. Schenck continued. "Here the public can make a comparison immediately with the speaking stage and can see just how much improvement, or lack of improvement, is being made. We have found that there is an ideal combination of the silent picture with the sound and the talking picture, too. We have just produced a picture of this kind, 'Alias Jimmie Valentine.' The first reels are silent, the story is built up to a gripping climax and when the sound and talking effects are heard it is a most convincing production. When I saw this picture for the first time in the cold projection room I actually cried and I am not particularly soft in this respect. But through a combination of using the silent picture to provide the atmosphere and by using the sound effects and the talking at the right

Harvest Pageant Actors To Hold Rehearsal Today

The Spirit of Exportation has been added to the Georgia harvest pageant to be given Friday and Saturday night's of the woman's division of the chamber of commerce at the city auditorium for the benefit of the children's ward at Grady hospital.

Exportation is the last greatest phase of Georgia history and sponsors of the pageant believe that like agriculture and industry it will continue to be one of the leading factors in the state's prosperity. The spirit of exportation will be played by Miss Jessie Wilkerson, of the J. P. Allen company.

Final rehearsals for the pageant are to be held today with the last try-out of the musical score written especially for the Southern Bell Telephone company orchestra which will furnish the music for the entertainment.

Brisk sale of tickets was reported Wednesday by sponsors of the festival. The tickets are on sale at downtown department stores and drugstores as well as at the chamber of commerce. It also was announced Wednesday that half of the gallery sections would be reserved for negroes. Seats for the gallery will be on sale at the auditorium immediately preceding the performances.

GOVERNMENT ASKS CONSTRUCTION BIDS AT FORT BENNING

Washington, November 21.—(AP)—Bids have been called for construction of sections A, B, C and D of the second Quarrel barracks at Fort Benning, Ga., to be opened December 22 at Fort Benning.

ROOSEVELT IS NAMED ATTORNEY FOR RESORT

Warm Springs Mayor Confers Office on New Yorker.

Warm Springs, Ga., November 21.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, New York's governor-elect, had a new job today as temporary attorney for the town of Warm Springs, which boasts a population of 150.

The office was conferred upon him last night by Mayor S. W. Norris and members of the town council, who visited him at his cottage seeking advice in their negotiations for a new concrete highway through the business block and their dealings with a power company which is expected soon to take over the local electric light and power franchise. The mayor also is the Warm Springs ice man.

Mr. Roosevelt's first accomplishment as the town's legal representative was a saving of $93 in a $1,700 paving job, representing the difference between what the town officials thought they would have to pay and the actual amount of the contract he negotiated with the road builder.

Extends Economy Plan.

At the same time he further extended his proposed economy program for the town by advising the mayor to exact from the new power interests an annual rental for use of the town's streets for its power lines and poles.

He had found, he said, that this possible source of revenue had not been considered by the "city fathers."

Under the town's charter it cannot obligate itself financially for more than a year, but to pay for the paving Mr. Roosevelt procured the endorsement of the Warm Springs Foundation, operators of the local health resort which he founded, to five-year notes issued by the municipality.

Mr. Roosevelt said the matter of remuneration for his new office had not been mentioned. He added, however, that he had found nothing in the constitution of the state of New York which would prevent him from holding the post.

During the day the governor-elect received a letter advising him that Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, minority leader of the house, and Senator Bernard Downing, minority leader of the senate, would arrive here December 1 to discuss proposed legislation to be submitted to the state assembly.

CHEATHAMS FETE GOLDEN WEDDING AT MACON REUNION

Macon, Ga., November 21.—(AP)—Dr. and Mrs. T. A. Cheatham, prominent residents of this city, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary today. There was a family reunion and a big dinner this afternoon and from 5 to 7 there was a reception attended by a large number of friends.

Miss Fannie Cheatham, of Dawson, a bridesmaid at the wedding and a sister of Dr. Cheatham, was present. Dr. Gua E. Tigman, of Savannah, who was best man at the wedding, was unable to attend because of illness.

Dr. Cheatham before his retirement about eight months ago was state drug inspector for 25 years.

FIRE AT ROBERTA DESTROYS HOTEL; GUESTS ESCAPE

Roberta, Ga., November 21.—(AP)—The Harris House, local hotel, and an adjoining store were destroyed by fire last night. The town has no fire department and bucket brigades swung into action to prevent the fire from spreading.

The blaze started on the second floor of the hotel. All guests escaped. The adjoining store was operated by Mrs. Daisy Jordan. Another store building owned by D. F. Gordon was damaged.

Cakes Offered To Charitable Homes of City

"Free—Cakes for charitable institutions in Atlanta and Fulton county."

Above is an ad the Harry L. Schlesinger, Inc., manufacturers candy and crackers, is broadening and anxiously awaits appeals from institutions. Each year before Thanksgiving day, the Schlesinger company distributes cakes to the unfortunate.

Although a half dozen homes have sent in requests this year, Joe A. Schlesinger, secretary and treasurer of the company, is not satisfied. He wants every needy child and every charitable institution in the county to benefit. There is no charge and the only request made by the company is that orders be filed early; phone Walnut 6916 or 6917 and be sure to estimate the number of cakes needed.

Mr. Schlesinger says he will not be able to eat his Thanksgiving dinner if he knows that some needy home is being slighted. And that need not be. The cakes will be ready at the factory Tuesday morning ready for distribution. Deliveries will not be made. So, phone the Schlesinger company and give the number of cakes desired and Tuesday morning go to 94 Spring street, S. W. and your order will be ready.

Brides-Elect Share Honors With Debs at Today's Gaieties

Though the season's lovely bouquet of buds continues to occupy the center of the social stage and grace the spotlight of attention and admiration, a bevy of charming brides-elect share honors with them at the affairs making up the calendar for today. Miss Ruth Osburn, whose marriage to Howard Candler, Jr., will be a brilliant event of December, is among the most feted of the future brides, others among the number including Miss Highland Chaffee, whose marriage to Ware Huthcheson, Jr., takes place next Tuesday; Miss Leila Thompson, and Miss Martha Louise Davis. The debutantes' club meets with Miss Estelle Boynton this afternoon and later the group will attend the barbeque at which Miss Anne Lane Newell will be hostess, honoring Miss Mary Harris, one of the most popular members of the club, the lovely al fresco affair to be given at "Camp Civitania."

The army social contingent's attention is focused on the series of polo games to be inaugurated today at Fort McPherson with the game between the Four Horsemen of the garrison and the Fort Oglethorpe team, which is here for the series. The game will be followed by a tea-dance at the Officers' club at the post. A popular visitor in the city who centers much social admiration is Miss Betty Broome, of Jacksonville, Fla., the guest of Mrs. William Wellborn, who will be honored guest at Miss Winifred Niall's luncheon at her home on Oakdale road.

Children's Home Body Gives Benefit Bridge.

A benefit bridge will be given by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Georgia Children's Home society Monday, November 26, at 2:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Biltmore. Mrs. William Candler, chairman of the finance committee, and Mrs. Robert Pringle, co-chairman, with their committees, are in charge. The committee includes Mrs. J. M. Cooper, Mrs. Paul Fleming, Mrs. Stiles Hopkins, Mrs. W. F. Dykes, with the chairman and co-chairman. Those desiring reservations, which are 50c each or $2 a table, are asked to telephone Mrs. Pringle, Dearborn 2745. Players are requested to bring their own cards, score pads and pencils.

Polo Games Hold Interest Of Fort McPherson Society

Fort McPherson, November 21.—With the arrival this week of the two polo teams from Fort Oglethorpe for a symphony on Saturday and a two-day series of games between the fort team and the Governor's Horse Guards on Thursday and Saturday afternoon the social calendar at the garrison is crowded with enjoyable events.

Thursday afternoon the first of the polo games between the Fort Oglethorpe Freebooters and the McPherson squad will take place at 2 o'clock on the polo field at the post. The lineup for the visiting team will be Captain C. H. Reed at 1, Captain W. V. B. Ochs at 2, Lieutenant F. D. Comfort at 3 and Lieutenant A. W. Johnson at 4, while the fort team will mount Major J. L. Tolson at 1, Major G. H. Franke at 2, Lieutenant Gilbert Procter at 3 and Captain Albert G. Wing at 4.

The second game will be played between the Governor's Horse Guards and the Fort Oglethorpe cavalry team at 4 o'clock. The visiting team will play Lieutenant H. J. Hodges at 1, Captain G. X. Cheves at 2, Lieutenant R. E. Ireland at 4, while the guardsmen will mount Ray Love at 1, P. D. Christian, Jr., at 2, Laurence Gay at 3 and Wesley Moran at 4.

Following the polo games Thursday the polo players and their wives from Fort Oglethorpe will entertain at a tea at the Officers' club in honor of the visiting polo players and their wives from Fort Oglethorpe.

Friday evening the Officers' club will entertain with a hop at the Officers' club in honor of the visiting polo players and their wives from Fort Oglethorpe. Prior to the hop General and Mrs. Abraham G. Lott will entertain at a dinner at their quarters, including their guest list a number of the visiting teams and their wives and a group of the military set. Covers will be placed for fifteen.

Major and Mrs. Ward E. Duvall will entertain the same evening at an informal buffet supper in honor of several members of the Fort Oglethorpe team and their wives and a number of the military contingent. Twenty guests have been invited for this occasion and later in the evening Major and Mrs. Duvall and their guests will attend the hop at the Officers' club.

The symphony of Saturday afternoon will prove an interesting event to Atlanta lovers of horses and clever riding. Commencing at 1:30 o'clock with a grand march and continuing through ten carefully planned events the symphony provides classes for polo players, officers' mounts, ladies' chargers and a number of amusing events such as the potato race and musical chairs.

Since the proceeds of the polo games and the symphony are to be used for Atlanta's Community Chest a large number of civilians and the military group are expected to "end," Miss Helen Caffey entertained the members of her bridge club at her quarters Wednesday afternoon at the garrison. The guest list included Miss Dorothy Tellets, Miss Katharine Foster, Miss Patricia Donahue, Mrs. Simeon J. Seals, Mrs. Robert Griffiths Turner and Mrs. Albert G. Wing. Lieutenant and Mrs. F. D. Comfort arrived from Fort Oglethorpe Tuesday by motor for station at the garrison. Lieutenant Comfort will be aide de camp to General Abraham G. Lott and both he and Mrs. Comfort will be attractive acquisitions to garrison society. Until their new quarters in building 27 are ready for occupancy Lieutenant and Mrs. Comfort will be the guests of General and Mrs. Lott.

A charming visitor from Augusta, Ark., is Mrs. G. Haralson, who is visiting her daughter and son, Captain and Mrs. John R. Dinsmore, at their quarters in the garrison. Captain and Mrs. Malcolm Fortier, of Fort Benning, Ga., "stayed up" a shopping trip in Atlanta Wednesday.

Mrs. R. K. Rambo Is Honor Guest At Lovely Parties

Honoring Mrs. R. K. Rambo, who has recently returned from an extended European tour, Mrs. E. V. Carter entertains at a duplicate bridge luncheon at 1 o'clock this afternoon, at her home on Springdale road.

The guests will include Mesdames Rambo, James L. Logan, William Thompson, C. J. Lewis, R. H. White, G. T. Woolford, Hamilton Douglas, J. H. Nicholson, R. M. Walker, John M. Cooper, Lee Ashcraft, and J. T. Williams.

Mrs. R. M. Walker will entertain informally at a later date honoring Mrs. Rambo. Other parties planned will be announced later.

Day and were dinner guests of General and Mrs. Abraham G. Lott the same evening.

Feed Fat Away The Food is in Marmola

It seems queer, but the modern method is to feed away excess fat. The food is a gland substance, taken from cattle and sheep. The amount decided by scientific tests is two grains a day.

The reason is this: Medical research has found that the great cause of excess fat lies in a weakened gland. It is really a disease. No exercise or diet can correct it. When that gland is under-active, too much food goes to fat. Physicians, the world over, in treating obesity, now try to correct that condition.

The main factor is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. They were perfected in a famous medical laboratory. People have used them for more than 20 years—millions of boxes of them. They have told the results to others. Not only constant loss of weight, but new health and vitality. Thus the use has spread, from year to year, until countless people use this modern method. You can see the results wherever you look. Slender figures are the rule. Excess fat is now a rarity. Men and women try to look and feel their best.

Try this method for excess fat in any part that makes you look old or abnormal. Watch the fat fade away. Watch the new vigor that comes. You will be amazed and delighted. Don't go on with a weight of fat when so many are getting slender. Start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

The Pleasant Way to Reduce

ANTI-SMITH PARTY TO CONTINUE ACTIVE

Here To Keep Organization Intact.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The anti-Smith democratic party of Georgia will continue active in the political field "so long as need for such an organization is evident," leaders of the party said at the conclusion of a testimonial dinner to the leaders, held at the chamber of commerce Tuesday night. Those assembled praised the Macon News, which campaigned actively against the election of Governor Al Smith, democratic presidential nominee.

In responding to the address of welcome, R. L. McKenney, publisher of the News, said:

Victory Achieved.
"Georgia has achieved a grand victory but the fight is just begun and of course we will keep our organization intact so long as it may be necessary. Prohibition is one of the greatest economic questions for the whole world as well as the United States. In fact the outside world is looking to this country to continue enforcement of the eighteenth amendment as the surest way of bringing about a situation where other nations can find it definitely to their advantage to adopt prohibition."

At the conclusion of Mr. McKenney's speech a rising vote of thanks was given to him and the Macon News.

Hooper Alexander, who was elected to the state legislature from DeKalb county and whose campaign speeches were directed against Smith, told of plans which he said may lead the party to demand a recount of the November election ballots. He said the law requires that the ballots in a national election be held 45 days and that he had written Governor Hardman asking him to make sure this requirement is complied with.

"Let us hold the anti-Smith party intact and watch the old line democracy, which does not represent the real democracy of the state or the nation," said Mr. Alexander.

Tells of Women's Work.

Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Atlanta, state W. C. T. U. leader, told of the part taken by the women in the campaign. She said they renewed the pledge to register and take increasing interest in elections of the future, particularly where moral issues are concerned, such as prohibition. Mrs. Carl Hutcheson also told of the work done by the women in the election.

Dr. A. J. Barton, of Atlanta, secretary of the Southern Baptist board and prohibition leader, said it was necessary to demand fair treatment by the democratic daily press.

Other speakers included G. Seals Aiken, Atlanta, toastmaster; Thomas G. Lewis, Atlanta; Ben Neal, Montezuma; Judge W. A. Covington, prohibition worker; C. E. Brown, editor of the Cordell Dispatch.

Barry Wright, state chairman, was detained at his home in Rome on account of illness.

ITALIAN CHAMBER CONVENED IN LAST SESSION OF KIND

Rome, November 21.—(AP)—The Italian chamber of deputies, the last to be elected under the regime of popular suffrage met today for its final sessions.

Although this will be a short session, a number of important matters still have to come before the outgoing chamber which will be dissolved some time toward the end of next month. Among these matters are the bill giving a legal and constitutional status to the grand council of fascism, a bill for making application of the fascist "charter of labor" obligatory on all employers, a measure for an increase in workmen's pensions and various bills for extensive public works.

EFFICIENCY EXPERT NEEDED BY BANDITS

Profession Appears Down
Grade in Chicago District.

Chicago, November 21.—(AP)—The decadent age of banditry seems to have set in.

First there was the bandit who got puffed at his victim, threw away his gun and started a fight. Then there was the bandit who stuttered, taking so long to give the command to "let-it-lick 'em up that police were on the scene before the victim could respond. Again, just last week, there was the holdup man who picked a deaf gentleman as his victim, and had to shout so loud to make his demands known that police came running.

Today there was Daniel Falco, the holdup man who forgot his pistol. Falco walked up to Milton Fields at Madison and Curtis streets and said: "Hands up."

As he spoke, he reached to his hip pocket for his gun. It was not there. In a quandary, he began to search his other pockets. His victim observed the actions with growing interest.

"You have no gun?" he inquired.

"No," said Falco. "It's gone."

"That's all right," said the victim. "He began burying his fists in Falco's face."

When Police Lieutenant Sullivan was shouting the catchword "Falco" a few minutes later Falco was mystified.

"It certainly beats all," he said, "where I put that gun."

WEST ASKS BIDS ON ROYALTY OIL SALE

Washington, November 21.—(AP)—Secretary West today issued a call for bids for the sale of royalty oil from leases on government land in the Cat Creek oil field in Montana for a period of three years beginning February 1, 1929, the bids to be opened at the interior department next January second.

The oil offered for sale is from the leases formerly held by the Lewistown Oil and Refining company, at Detroit, Mich., whose contract was cancelled by Secretary West when Attorney General Sargent ruled that it was invalid because it contained an option for renewal not specified in the advertisements for bids.

In asking for the bids Secretary West announced that during 1927 government royalty oil from the Cat Creek field amounted to approximately 39,800 barrels and from January 1 to September 30, 1928, to approximately 32,300 barrels.

The contract for the sale of the oil originally was entered into with former Secretary Albert B. Fall in December, 1922, for five years, with a provision that the Lewistown Oil and Refining company could renew under option the contract for additional five years. It was renewed by former Secretary Work last March.

GERMANY CUTS U. S. WAR DEBT TO $210,582,775

Washington, November 21.—(AP)—Germany reduced the claims of the United States for reimbursement of the cost of maintenance of the army of occupation on the Rhine river by $22,558,474 during the fiscal year ending June 30, leaving due $210,582,775. Major General Roderick L. Carmichael, chief of finance, reported today to Secretary of War Davis, that Germany made two payments.

CATHOLICS TO CONDUCT EDUCATION CAMPAIGN

Cincinnati, November 21.—(AP)—An educational campaign to acquaint the general public with the character, history, teachings, civil and religious alliance of Catholics and the Catholic church will be conducted by the National Council of Catholic Men and affiliated organizations.

Resolutions for such a campaign were adopted by the council last night at the final session of its annual convention here. Another resolution urged the Catholic clergy to support the problems in the light of Catholic principles, by members and affiliated societies.

During a discussion of the effects of the recent presidential election, the Rev. Peter Guilday, a professor of church history at the Catholic university, Washington, D. C., denounced "foes of the Catholic church who spread lies and calumny about the church and its members."

Following the assertion of a delegate that Catholic laymen should "alleviate antagonism to the church," by co-operating with the Protestants.

Dr. Guilday replied: "Co-operate with them? For 15 years we have given them cooperation and have done everything in our power to assist and enlighten them as to the true religion and practices of the church and then in the stress of the last election they turned their backs on us and ministers to attack and vilify us because we are Catholics. We are through with cooperating."

Widow of Flier Claims Messages From His Spirit

London, November 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Walter Hinchliffe, widow of the British airman who disappeared last March in an attempt to make an Atlantic flight, believes that her husband still survives in the spirit world.

So strongly does she believe this that she will advise a meeting under spiritualist auspices at which she will tell of communications which she has had with him through a medium.

In an interview with the Associated Press today, Mrs. Hinchliffe asserted that many messages containing conclusive proof that they were from her missing husband have been received by her, telling of his last heroic adventure.

The communications revealed, she said, that she and the Honorable Elsie Mackay, his passenger, plunged into the ocean within sight of the Azores after losing a battle with a furious storm.

"I got free of the machine," she quoted her husband as saying, Miss Mackay went down with the machine."

Mrs. Hinchliffe said communication with her husband was first established through a ouija board worked with a medium. This was confirmed through a medium in a trance. In both cases the mediums were women. Mrs. Hinchliffe explained communication was then continued at a number of sessions with both mediums. She acknowledged also the good offices of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in these conversations with the missing airman.

Mrs. Hinchliffe, a slim, youthful woman and the mother of two small children, protested that her husband gave many proofs of the authenticity of these communications. He referred, she said, to several objects and incidents known only to herself and advised her effectively regarding the conduct of business affairs.

FARMERS ARE READY FOR COOPERATION ACTS

Them Tells Conference Midwest Will Assist Hoover Program.

Rock Island, Ill., November 21.—(AP)—E. G. Thiem, director of information for the Illinois Agricultural association, told a conference of the organization today that farm groups of the middle west stand ready to cooperate with President-elect Hoover in any program designed to bring about stabilization of farm prices.

"While many farmers were disappointed in the campaign pledges of the presidential nominees," he said, "yet every student of history must admit that never before has a chief executive entered office so definitely committed to solve the economic problems facing the agricultural industry. From this point of view, the American farmer scored a tremendous victory in the recent campaign."

Thiem said he believed the tendency of the farmer to disregard party lines and vote for the benefit of his industry was a healthy sign for future development, and added that as government intervention contributed to the farm depressions of recent years, it was a healthy sign for future development, and added that as government intervention contributed to the farm depressions of recent years, it was a healthy sign for future development.

SMITH IS WINNER
WITH BAMBOO ROD

Edgewater, Miss., November 21.—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith went fishing today and brought back seven large speckled and white trout on his string.

The governor used a plain bamboo "ole fishin' hole" pole while others in the party employed rods of red and red.

He was in jolly mood and razzed the whole party, especially John J. Raskob, democratic committee chairman, who has been beating him consistently at golf.

Raskob's catch consisted of one measly little croaker and a salt water catfish, regarded as about the worst thing that looks a line.

HEAD CONVICTED
BUT RETAINS JOB

Raleigh, N. C., November 21.—(AP)—A fine of $500 and costs was imposed today on Dr. Albert Anderson, superintendent for the State Hospital for the Insane, who was convicted yesterday on two counts of an indictment charging malfeasance in office. Attorneys for the 63-year-old physician immediately gave notice of appeal to the state supreme court.

Judge Devin held that Dr. Anderson's status as superintendent of the hospital was not impaired by the verdict. Solicitor Leon Brassfield, who prosecuted the case, concurred in this view.

IS BADLY HURT IN AUTO WRECK

Fort Pierce, Fla., November 21.—(AP)—Sheriff J. R. Merritt, of St. Lucie county, was in a critical condition at a local hospital today as the result of a collision last night between his automobile and one driven by E. J. Russell, of Moorhaven.

Officers arrested Russell, who, they said, was intoxicated. He was in the county jail today where he was treated for slight injuries.

Merritt's chest was crushed but physicians said he had a "fighting chance" to recover.

P. O. MONEY ORDERS LOST WITH VESTRIS
MAY BE PAID

Washington, November 21.—(AP)—Postal money orders lost with American mail on the foundered steamship Vestris may be made good by a certified application to the division of money orders for duplicates.

Assistant Postmaster General R. S. Regan said today that general instructions have been issued to postmasters to facilitate sending of new remittances.

Air-Train Service From Jacksonville To Miami Planned

Jacksonville, Fla., November 21.—(AP)—Daily passenger air service between this city and Miami is planned by the Skyview Lines, Inc., of Detroit, Mich., officials of the corporation announced today.

The announcement followed landing here of one of the company's planes after a two-hour flight from Charleston, S. C. Officials said the plane was one of several now making good-will tours of the south under the auspices of the Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Cooper Stirs Up More Talk About Federal Patronage

Tuscaloosa, Ala., November 21.—(AP)—Dr. J. H. Cooper, of Tuscaloosa, has renewed his correspondence with Senator Smith W. Brookhart, chairman of the senatorial investigating committee, into charges of alleged federal patronage in southern states, relative to patronage in the awarding of postoffices in Alabama.

In a letter to Senator Brookhart yesterday Dr. Cooper enclosed copies of three letters from residents of Alabama cities which he said would throw light on the situation in this state and invites an investigation of federal patronage in Alabama.

Names and towns represented in the letters were withheld by Dr. Cooper who said that one of the letters stated that "$50 was demanded" of the writer in 1924 and in another that the writer stated that he "knew too much about the situation to be written, unless I desire to write a book" and requested that a representative of the committee be sent to him for facts.

The third letter, Dr. Cooper said, contained the names of several "prominent persons" in Alabama who might be able to produce some interesting facts having to do with patronage demands.

Dr. Cooper stated that he had information indicating that two Birmingham men were in Tuscaloosa, November 16 in connection with the appointment of postmaster in an adjoining town.

"Money is not the only consideration which enters into the sale of post-office patronage down here in this state, according to my information," Dr. Cooper concluded in requesting that the letters enclosed be given due consideration by the senatorial committee.

Forty Million Atheists in U. S. Says Leader Smith, Chicago

ONLY 100,000 BRAVE ENOUGH TO ADMIT IT

Chicago, November 21.—(United Press)—Forty million persons in the United States, most of them assuming a sanctimonious demeanor, are atheists, but only a small percentage are brave enough to admit it, Charles Smith, hunger-striking atheist leader, said in an interview today.

Smith arrived in Chicago today hurling bombastic denunciations at the Arkansas anti-evolution and anti-atheism laws and determined to carry on in his fight to have these "deprivations of liberty" wiped from the statute books in southern states.

His first act after reaching his room in a fashionable hotel today was to take the Bible from his table and throw it into the waste basket, declaring: "There is nothing in this; the Bible is a lie."

"There are atheists on all sides of us," Smith told the United Press. "Forty million would be a conservative estimate. Only about 100,000 are willing to admit it. The total church membership in the United States is about 40,000,000. Presuming that about 15,000,000 also believe in God, that leaves easily 40,000,000 or more atheists."

Plans Mass Meeting.
Smith, who recently went on a hunger-strike in Little Rock, in protest to the Arkansas law prohibiting an atheist to testify in court, plans to hold a mass meeting in Chicago next Saturday night in his campaign against "intolerance."

"I was sentenced for spreading literature tending to incite riot," he said. "But my testimony was not permitted in court. We are the only group of people in the United States restricted in this privilege. We are going to protest against this deprivation of liberty. That law was enacted through ignorance."

Those bill blitzes in Arkansas and fundamentalists are being told their children will be ruined through study of evolution. We insist on the right of free speech. Those people down there made life miserable for me. If I hadn't been a native of Arkansas I believe they would have lynched me."

Seeks Darrow Aid.
Smith plans to seek the aid of Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer and agnostic, in his fight against the Arkansas laws and similar ones in the states of Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi and Maryland.

Agnostics are atheists, although they are a little skeptical in their beliefs," Smith said. "The story of the Virgin birth started me to thinking and I became an atheist. I concluded it was absurd and then I read further and found other lies in the Bible."

"I would like to have Clarence Darrow appear on the same platform with me in Saturday's meeting."

Convicted Twice.
Smith said Darrow had offered to aid him in the case when he was convicted of "personal annoyance" in sending letters to Dr. John Roach Straton assailing the New York minister's faith. Smith was convicted twice in Arkansas, the second time on a charge of blasphemy. A sentence of three months is pending against him and he now is free on $1,000 appeal bond.

He will return to Little Rock late in December to fight the case. During his 16-day hunger strike on his first Arkansas conviction, Smith lost 20 pounds but said he had regained the weight since his release.

"Before this thing is settled, I may file suit for $100,000 damages against the city of Little Rock for false imprisonment," he said. "The whole case down there was a farce and I intend to make the public see that it was."

BUFORD EMPLOYEE IS SERIOUSLY HURT
BY LIMITED TRAIN

Buford, Ga., November 21.—G. H. Sudderth, employee of the city of Buford, is in a Gainesville hospital as a result of being struck by the Crescent Limited this afternoon while driving one of the city's mules crossing the railroad at Jackson street.

His vision was obstructed by a number of shanty cats and he did not see the train until after he had driven upon the tracks. Stopping the mule, he attempted to back off.

Dr. J. C. Orr, who rendered first aid, states Mr. Sudderth, who was thrown from the wagon striking his head against a cross-tie, sustained a fractured skull.

the world war, is playing to capacity audiences at the Howard theater this week, where it is being presented for the first time in popular prices and with sound. To care for the crowds wanting to see it, the Howard is opening its doors each morning at 9 a. m. The star cast includes such players as Clara Bow, Buddy Rogers, Richard Arlen and Gary Cooper.

Rialto.

The Rialto this week offers Hedda Hopper in a clever comedy skit, "Givin' In," which is drawing plenty of laughs. It tells of the visit of mother-in-law and the novel ruse worked successfully by son-in-law to be rid of her parent who has the view of the Rialto as a "Givin' In." "The Rialto" is a good "Givin' In" in the feature picture and is a sophisticated comedy revolving about the visit of a daughter to her father in gay Paris.

Cameo.

Pay Wray and Gary Cooper, Paramount's young lovers, are at the Cameo today in their first star vehicle, "The First Kiss." This is the same pair that made "The Legion of the Condemned," and Gary Cooper is the star of "Wings" and "Lilac Time."

Alamo No. 2.

Three of the screen's foremost comedy favorites appear in the cast of "Nobody's Widow," a new Metropolitan picture starring Letitia Joy, which will be presented at the Alamo No. 2 theater today. Charles Ray, who is the star of the picture, is the same pair that made "The Legion of the Condemned," and Gary Cooper is the star of "Wings" and "Lilac Time."

Ponce de Leon.

A hilarious farce comedy of backstage life, "The Ponce de Leon," is the theatrical boarding house and hectic promoting of free meals is now on at the Ponce de Leon. The picture is "The Ponce de Leon," based on the musical comedy success of the same name. Dorothy Mackall and Jack Mulhall in the featured roles, appear in support of Miss Joy. Ray portrays an English clubman who is thrown into the Ponce de Leon by the Ponce de Leon. BORAH URGES SPECIAL FARM RELIEF SESSION

Senator Tells Grange Problem Cannot Be Solved at Regular Session.

Washington, November 21.—(P)—Senator Borah today urged that the national grange support the proposition of a special session of congress to consider farm relief. Speaking at the grange convention here, he said he felt the problem could not be solved at the coming regular session.

"This recent campaign has placed all this holding public office in a position where they must take hold of the farm problem and extra steps to solve it," he said. "There is no escape from the obligation undertaken. Both parties declared their platforms for some relief measure."

Turning to the Kellogg peace treaty Senator Borah declared that international peace was of national concern and of particular concern to farmers, and expressed the hope that the senate would ratify the pact at the coming session.

Attitude of South Americans Considered.

Washington, November 21.—(P)—The attitude of South American countries against higher tariffs is not as a bar against the demands of the tariff by Senator Borah, of Idaho, farm bill for early upward revision of the American tariff schedules.

Nor does Senator Borah, who is chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, feel that the South American tariff being made by Herbert Hoover will have any effect on the tariff for tariff protection to agriculture.

The Idahoan is the leader of a group demanding that the newly elected congress be called into extra session by spring for Hoover for the consideration of farm relief. He considers higher tariffs on farm products essential to agricultural relief, but for this reason believes congress will be unable to deal with the question at the approaching short session when tariff legislation seems impossible of fulfillment.

ENORMOUS DAMAGE IS LEFT IN WAKE OF WESTERN FLOOD

Kansas City, November 21.—(P)—With the flood damage estimated at $200,000,000 in Kansas and 11 known states, in addition to five unknown in Missouri and Oklahoma, stricken communities in this section were striving to get back to normal today.

Electric power and city water service had been restored in most of the cities affected and residents were cleaning up homes to make them habitable once more. In Ottawa, Kan., where five lives were lost, still without electric and water service, but it was expected to be restored to a limited extent some time today.

All of the streams in Kansas except the Neosho in the southern part of the state are running high. The estimate of $200,000,000 damage came from Walter H. Chappell, director of the flood control of Southwestern Kansas, Inc., an organization in Kansas counties, who made a survey of flooded areas.

BRITISH FIRMS JOIN TO CHALLENGE U. S. RULE IN AUTO FIELD

London, November 21.—(P)—With the intention of challenging American supremacy in the world automobile market, three of the leading British firms will be making a combined move to challenge U. S. rule in the auto field.

The nine-month-old firm had been established and had been the backbone of the British auto industry. The firm was founded here today when police records failed to show a report of a missing infant. The baby's mutilated body, which was found in a lonely gulch near here yesterday.

SEAT HITS NEW PEAK.

New York, November 21.—(P)—For the first time in the history of the New York Stock Exchange, a member of the exchange yesterday reached a new peak. Today's seat brought $525,000, an increase of $30,000 from the last sale.

Chicago Seat at Peak.

Chicago, November 21.—(P)—Advancing $5,000 over the last sale, the Chicago board of trade membership was reported sold today for $35,000, establishing a new high price record.

Cottonseed Oil.

New Orleans, November 21.—The market for cottonseed oil was steady but showed no inclination to advance despite the fact that the market was giving promise of a large sale expected to be made at 10.00 and prime cottonseed oil was reported sold at 10.00 and 10.00. Futures closed steady, November 8.00; December 8.00; January 8.00; March 8.00.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

The Story of Our War With Spain. Lawton Advances to Juragua.

ON THE MORNING OF JUNE 23, 1898, LAWTON'S ADVANCE GUARD, CONSISTING OF 50 PICKED MEN UNDER COL. WAGNER, AND 200 CUBAN SCOUTS UNDER COL. AQUERRA, ENTERED THE TOWN OF JURAGUA, WHICH THE ENEMY, RETREATING TOWARD SANTIAGO, HAD ABANDONED.

LEARNING THAT HIS TROOPS HELD JURAGUA, GEN. LAWTON HURRIED UP WITH THE MAIN BODY. HE MADE THE TOWN HIS HEADQUARTERS, TAKING ALL THE WHILE TO HOLD IT AGAINST ATTACK, AND PRECAUTIONS TO HOLD IT AGAINST ATTACK, AND RAISED THE "STARS AND STRIPES" OVER THE GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS.

The Story of Our War With Spain. Lawton Advances to Juragua.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

MEANWHILE, WAGNER'S SCOUTING PARTY HAD PRESSED ON. NOT FAR FROM JURAGUA SOME OF AQUERRA'S CUBAN ENCOUNTERED THE SPANISH REAR GUARD IN THE BUSH, AND THERE WAS A BRISK SKIRMISH. THE CUBANS SUSTAINED A NUMBER OF CASUALTIES.
